NEW high prices for Steel stock, another new and higher price for General Motors yesterday; 232,000 shares of Steel sold forced the price to $146; 392,600 shares of General Motors sold in a day forced the price to $191. A while since it was $118. Buyers must feel like men that walk on iron beams at the top of skyscrapers. A long distance to drop if you do drop. But at least they are buying, not selling, and that's common sense in this country.

THERE is excitement because Samuel Insull, who controls electric power in Chicago, contributed money to all senatorial candidates. Mr. Insull must protect his stockholders. Somebody will be elected to the senate, and everybody asks for money. If you refused one, he might be elected. Senators are powerful. Corporation gifts to candidates are really accident insurance.

POWERFUL is habit. In Japan no women were on the stage. Japanese men played female roles. Now Japanese women act and the public demands that they imitate, in every detail, the female impersonators. A Japanese girl, to be an actress, must learn how a man acts when he pretends to be a woman.

Here, if a man wants to buy a seat in the senate, he must learn how old senators used to act, when senators were statesmen, and elected because voters knew them by name, not because friends were willing to contribute a million dollars to help them on $15,000 salary in six years.

COOLIDGE FORD says: "Mr. Coolidge can be re-elected" and thinks the "third term idea" would not interfere.

Millions are convinced that President Coolidge will be re-elected. As to a third term, that is not involved. President Coolidge has been elected president of the United States once and George Washington's idea was that a president in power should not use that power to cause his re-election continuously. He felt that two elections were enough. Calvin Coolidge probably will have two elections. Thus far he has had only one.

A YOUNG man in Hanover married three times, said he was absent minded and forgot his marriages. Kind court, believing his story, put him in jail for one month. Perhaps the judge remembered how Hegel appeared before his class at Heidelberg

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—The great struggle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church is in full progress today.

The government appears to have the upper hand for the moment, having taken possession of the churches and turned them over to municipal committees, as well as having seized and sealed all church buildings not actually used for divine services.

Tomorrow May Be Crucial Day.

The supporters of the church have retalliated with an economic boycott, which is already injuring business and threatening industrial paralysis.

GRANT DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF $75,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE, ADOPTION OF WHICH MEANS $40,000 GIFT

Pointing out that Newell, with an investment of $64.51 per enrolled pupil, has less property than any of the four school zones in Hancock county the Grant district board of education today addressed its final appeal to the electors to approve the $75,000 bond issue for a new elementary and high school to be submitted at the primary election next Tuesday.

The vote on the proposal follows an offer made by the Homer Laughlin China company and W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the company, of cash contributions totaling $30,000, as well as a site with a market value of approximately $10,000, by the North American Manufacturing company, all Newell interests, for a new school.

A statement issued by the district board shows that the steel town of Weirton, in the lower end of Hancock county, has an investment of $272.73 per pupil registered in the schools; Chester, $162.55, and New Cumberland, $150.64. In other words, the investment in Newell is less than one-fourth of that in Weirton and less than half of that in Chester and New Cumberland.

Comparison of Levies.

Other figures reveal that only $36.42 cents was spent for each pupil enrolled in the Grant district schools last year compared with $37.46 spent in Clay district; $42.96 in New Cumberland, $52.84 in Butler district and $73.74 in Chester.

But one other school zone in the county—Clay district in which no high school is maintained had a lower levy for school purposes during 1925-26 than Grant district. New Cumberland headed the districts with a $1.90 levy per $100 valuation. Butler district, with its big tax duplicate including the steel mills at Weirton, was second with a levy of $1.60. The Chester independent school district was third with $1.44 while Grand district was fourth with $1.21. The levy in Clay district, which includes Pughtown with elementary schools only, was 82 cents per $100 valuation. Considering the districts which maintain high schools, Grant district's school levy last year was the lowest in the county.

"At present Grant district is paying a considerable sum for temporary buildings, totally unfitted for the purpose, to provide for the overflow from its one school," the board's statement reads. "A new building would not only give the children proper school facilities, but the expense thus eliminated would aid materially in meeting the interest on the bonds."

Corporations and public utilities doing business in Grant district pay 50 per cent or more of the taxes levied and collected in the district and hence will pay the greater part of the cost in the construction of the new school if the bond issue is approved, it is pointed out.

If the bond issue is adopted, the district school board will improve facilities at the Grandview school, Lawrenceville, back of Chester, as well as erect a new building in Newell.

"It is to the interest of all voters of Grant district to support the bond issue from a purely selfish point of view, but it is of far greater importance to them to support it because of the better opportunity it gives the children of the district to secure an education," the statement concludes.

Should the bond issue be approved, the district school board will rush the necessary legislation in an effort to complete the new structure at the earliest possible date. The site selected is part of the old country club grounds, almost opposite the home of A. V. Bleininger, chemist at the Homer Laughlin China company's plant.

GRANT DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF $75,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE, ADOPTION OF WHICH MEANS $40,000 GIFT

Pointing out that Newell, with an investment of $64.51 per enrolled pupil, has less property than any of the four school zones in Hancock county the Grant district board of education today addressed its final appeal to the electors to approve the $75,000 bond issue for a new elementary and high school to be submitted at the primary election next Tuesday.

The vote on the proposal follows an offer made by the Homer Laughlin China company and W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the company, of cash contributions totaling $30,000, as well as a site with a market value of approximately $10,000, by the North American Manufacturing company, all Newell interests, for a new school.

A statement issued by the district board shows that the steel town of Weirton, in the lower end of Hancock county, has an investment of $272.73 per pupil registered in the schools; Chester, $162.55, and New Cumberland, $150.64. In other words, the investment in Newell is less than one-fourth of that in Weirton and less than half of that in Chester and New Cumberland.

Comparison of Levies.

Other figures reveal that only $36.42 cents was spent for each pupil enrolled in the Grant district schools last year compared with $37.46 spent in Clay district; $42.96 in New Cumberland, $52.84 in Butler district and $73.74 in Chester.

But one other school zone in the county—Clay district in which no high school is maintained had a lower levy for school purposes during 1925-26 than Grant district. New Cumberland headed the districts with a $1.90 levy per $100 valuation. Butler district, with its big tax duplicate including the steel mills at Weirton, was second with a levy of $1.60. The Chester independent school district was third with $1.44 while Grand district was fourth with $1.21. The levy in Clay district, which includes Pughtown with elementary schools only, was 82 cents per $100 valuation. Considering the districts which maintain high schools, Grant district's school levy last year was the lowest in the county.

"At present Grant district is paying a considerable sum for temporary buildings, totally unfitted for the purpose, to provide for the overflow from its one school," the board's statement reads. "A new building would not only give the children proper school facilities, but the expense thus eliminated would aid materially in meeting the interest on the bonds."

Corporations and public utilities doing business in Grant district pay 50 per cent or more of the taxes levied and collected in the district and hence will pay the greater part of the cost in the construction of the new school if the bond issue is approved, it is pointed out.

If the bond issue is adopted, the district school board will improve facilities at the Grandview school, Lawrenceville, back of Chester, as well as erect a new building in Newell.

"It is to the interest of all voters of Grant district to support the bond issue from a purely selfish point of view, but it is of far greater importance to them to support it because of the better opportunity it gives the children of the district to secure an education," the statement concludes.

Should the bond issue be approved, the district school board will rush the necessary legislation in an effort to complete the new structure at the earliest possible date. The site selected is part of the old country club grounds, almost opposite the home of A. V. Bleininger, chemist at the Homer Laughlin China company's plant.

"The Blazed Trail"

Man must walk a path some other has made. Only a few can make new paths across the earth. The most of us are not trail blazers but trail followers.

Up in the far north land, he who travels there is wise who follows the Blazed Trail.

Are there no trails in the realm of moral and spiritual life that have been blazed and which ought to be followed?

"The Blazed Trail"

Man must walk a path some other has made. Only a few can make new paths across the earth. The most of us are not trail blazers but trail followers.

Up in the far north land, he who travels there is wise who follows the Blazed Trail.

Are there no trails in the realm of moral and spiritual life that have been blazed and which ought to be followed?

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

"They were rehearsing, you see. Scene and costume work. They're pretty well along. We went right over to the theater. The stage was crowded with girls. Honest, I believe they're using a cool hundred of 'em. And enormous, built-up scenes. Flights of steps that look fifty feet high. Great arches. Silk drapes fifty feet long. The stage hands and electricians were working around, and I thought I counted the inevitable five chorus men. An enormous golden frame, a regular elaborate picture frame, but five times bigger than the biggest one up at the Metropolitan, was set up in the middle of the stage with some girls in bathrobes sitting near it on boxes. I began to suspect one-piece bathing suits in flesh color. But my mind was prepared. I didn't object. Why should I? The human body's all right. Considering Tennessee and prohibition and other quaint indications of progress, I'm not sure that the human body isn't about the best thing we've done thus far. . . . . Well, Hubert Green went around behind the boxes and sat in an orchestra seat. Czevek and Ralph whispered together, and then went out there and had a little talk with him. I just stood by and felt the girls eyeing me. After a little—Green seemed to be asking questions, and they all three looked up at me; Czevek looked up languidly, and Ralph made quick gestures then Czevek and Ralph came back on the stage. Ralph led me off to one side and, held my arm and looked down at me. 'Look here, Bee,' he said, 'you really want a job, I take it?'

"'Want it?' said I. 'I've got to get it!'

"'That's what I more or less thought. Now, listen: Cevek's a real artist, you know. And he's working out some wonderful living pictures. We show them in that frame. You've caught his fancy, you see.'

"'That's good,' said I.

"'But,'—he was looking pretty closely at me and smiling a little; Ralph's not a poor egg, you know, not by any means, and I couldn't help feeling that while he wanted to help me he felt queer about my being there, almost embarrassed—'but,' said he, 'I'm assuming you're not fussy, Bee.'

"'Not a bit' says I, still about as bright as Dora's dumbest cakeeater. 'I'm game for anything, if it's a real job.' I was downright proud about it. I'd show Ralph whether I was a thoroughbred or not, I would! Oh, marvelous, I was! It makes me sick to think of it now. Makes me so mad I could—" The color flooded her face; but she merely lowered her lids and after a moment of savage poking at the salad with her fork, went doggedly on. She had no wish to shield herself. "As I say, I'd made up my mind to tights, and even to certain exposure of my fair skin—within rather obvious limits. I've seen shows enough. I figured I knew well enough what they did and what I might have to do, and was all set on it. And God knows I'm not prurient or furtive, no more in the theater than on the beach. Ralph said another thing that passed by me at the moment. He said: 'Of course you won't have to use your own name, Bee.' And still I dreamed on. But oh, Lou, little do our innocent and maligned intelligentsia of the Village realize what's going on uptown! Little do we know! We've had to fight this dirty censoring instance to get a little freedom of expression. We've been absorbed down here, on the defensive merely because of our ideas. Just ideas! We haven't had time or curiosiy enough to look around at a few of the things they're not censoring. The things that are merely rotten with no ideas in them at all! Now, an idea is, at least, a clean thing. But those darn Puritans don't like clean things. And they won't think!"

T'is was the doctrinaire Bee, who loved to sputter out her theories, as she had been known to phrase it, to the cock-eyed world. It seemed to Lou that they were getting somewhat off the track. So she asked, "What happened?" in her blunt, office manner.

"Plenty. I'm telling you. Right now. After I let out that wise crack about being game for anything if only it was a real job, Ralph assured me that it was. If I looked good in the try-out, he said, and if Czevek found some plastic gift in me, they'd probably pay me seventy-five or a hundred a week. It was a peculiar case, he said. Czevek had been looking for a girl of just my height and size, and above all, for a girl with a touch of distinction. These chorus girls, he said, no use talking, just didn't have it.

"He introduced me to the assistant stage manager, who struck me as the hardest-boiled really young man I'd ever seen. Like a side-show barker at the circus, or a racetrack man. And his face had frozen that way. He nodded at me with one ear, pushed his hat back a little, said, 'Come this way, dearie,' and led me off down some iron stairs and put me into a little dressing room and just said: 'Take off your clothes. And hurry up about it.' That rather took my breath, especially as I didn't see anything at all in the room to put on. Nothing. But I'd said I was game, and I did it. Quick. I nearly went off into hysterics—in fact—I've not been far from hysterical laughter for a moment since, even now—at finding myself in that bare little room without a rag. I was pretty excited over the whole thing, the plunge I felt I was taking, and the real money and all. I supposed of course that egg would send the wardrobe mistress around. Somebody! When suddenly the door burst open, and it was the Egg himself."

Here is the Test

THESE five points are the test of efficiency, economy and convenience. Take these questions with you when buying a gas range.

1. Can you do all oven-cooking without preheating the oven?
2. Can you bake slowly and broil quickly at the same time?
3. Can you "stretch" the oven capacity for big bakings?
4. Does it have a gas-saving, bottomless oven?
5. Is the broiler above the oven to save stooping?

Answer: Yes, if it is a DIRECT ACTION Gas Range. Direct Action Gas Ranges meet all the real home tests. Come in and let us show you their exclusive advantages.

"'Not a bit' says I, still about as bright as Dora's dumbest cakeeater. 'I'm game for anything, if it's a real job.' I was downright proud about it. I'd show Ralph whether I was a thoroughbred or not, I would! Oh, marvelous, I was! It makes me sick to think of it now. Makes me so mad I could—" The color flooded her face; but she merely lowered her lids and after a moment of savage poking at the salad with her fork, went doggedly on. She had no wish to shield herself. "As I say, I'd made up my mind to tights, and even to certain exposure of my fair skin—within rather obvious limits. I've seen shows enough. I figured I knew well enough what they did and what I might have to do, and was all set on it. And God knows I'm not prurient or furtive, no more in the theater than on the beach. Ralph said another thing that passed by me at the moment. He said: 'Of course you won't have to use your own name, Bee.' And still I dreamed on. But oh, Lou, little do our innocent and maligned intelligentsia of the Village realize what's going on uptown! Little do we know! We've had to fight this dirty censoring instance to get a little freedom of expression. We've been absorbed down here, on the defensive merely because of our ideas. Just ideas! We haven't had time or curiosiy enough to look around at a few of the things they're not censoring. The things that are merely rotten with no ideas in them at all! Now, an idea is, at least, a clean thing. But those darn Puritans don't like clean things. And they won't think!"

T'is was the doctrinaire Bee, who loved to sputter out her theories, as she had been known to phrase it, to the cock-eyed world. It seemed to Lou that they were getting somewhat off the track. So she asked, "What happened?" in her blunt, office manner.

"Plenty. I'm telling you. Right now. After I let out that wise crack about being game for anything if only it was a real job, Ralph assured me that it was. If I looked good in the try-out, he said, and if Czevek found some plastic gift in me, they'd probably pay me seventy-five or a hundred a week. It was a peculiar case, he said. Czevek had been looking for a girl of just my height and size, and above all, for a girl with a touch of distinction. These chorus girls, he said, no use talking, just didn't have it.

"He introduced me to the assistant stage manager, who struck me as the hardest-boiled really young man I'd ever seen. Like a side-show barker at the circus, or a racetrack man. And his face had frozen that way. He nodded at me with one ear, pushed his hat back a little, said, 'Come this way, dearie,' and led me off down some iron stairs and put me into a little dressing room and just said: 'Take off your clothes. And hurry up about it.' That rather took my breath, especially as I didn't see anything at all in the room to put on. Nothing. But I'd said I was game, and I did it. Quick. I nearly went off into hysterics—in fact—I've not been far from hysterical laughter for a moment since, even now—at finding myself in that bare little room without a rag. I was pretty excited over the whole thing, the plunge I felt I was taking, and the real money and all. I supposed of course that egg would send the wardrobe mistress around. Somebody! When suddenly the door burst open, and it was the Egg himself."

Death fo Senator Cummins

The nation was shocked today by news of the death of United States Senator Albert Baird Cummins, who was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart disease at his home in Des Moines, Iowa, yesterday afternoon and succumbed a few moments later.

His death marks the passing of a veteran political leader in Iowa, a state that frequently honored him with public office. After serving as governor, he was elected to the United States senate and took his seat in 1908. He was defeated in the recent Republican primaries by Smith Brookhart, a Progressive, who entered the race after he had lost his senate seat to Daniel F. Steck, a Democrat, in a bitter contest.

Senator Cummins was a self-made man. He started out to be a carpenter, but later took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar. He entered politics as a Prohibitionist but soon became a Republican.

In the upper house of congress, where his ability attracted the attention of his colleagues, he was recognized as a conservative. The confidence of his party in his leadership was attested by his election as president pro tem of the senate, a place of honor that he held for more than five years.

A Record Automobile Year

Automobile production is by no means an infallible index to trade conditions, for the makers are human and optimistic to boot. But the efforts of the producing companies are stimulated or diminished by anticipations based on thorough-going study of basic trends, and they may, therefore, be regarded as reflecting about the best opinion available.

In the first six months of 1926 the American motor industry set a new high record for output with 2,176,281 passenger cars and 272,903 trucks, and although June and July have shown the expected recession from peak production the shrinkage is less conspicuous than that of a year ago.

In recent years production from January to July has approximated 53 per cent of the 12 months total and that from July to December 47 per cent. If 1926 prove a normal year, this country will produce more than 4,600,000 cars and trucks before December 31, and present business conditions and crop prospects hold no threat of impending depression.

The industry as a whole was never in better shape financially. A record season seems assured. Its influence upon other industries which supply raw materials and parts, fuel and tires, will go far to assure many months of that reasonable prosperity which is the best kind of all.

Belgium's Plan

Without much ado King Albert of Belgium applied himself to his task as financial dictator with such promptness that an apparently sound plan is already in view. It involves turning state-owned railway lines over to a private company which has agreed to exchange stock in that enterprise for short-term government obligations which must be retired as an incident to deflation and currency reform. Thus a former government obligation becomes a private corporation's obligation. Its own property and equipment is collateral, but the interest on the railroad securities is guaranteed by the public treasury.

This looks to the early retirement of the floating debt and a return to the gold standard by January 1.

If sound thinking and prompt action of this sort would just spread to the rest of Europe, particularly France, very grave evils might be averted and the outlook would be greatly improved.

Debt Facts Wanted

A little more frankness on the part of the government might help to clear up some of the existing debt confusion, softening foreign anger against America and explaining to Americans some of the reasons for that anger.

As things stand, however, two explanations of the debt situation seem to have been offered—one for home and one for European consumption.

The home explanation pays little attention to the interest items, but asserts that in the main our debtors are paying us in full. The explanation offered abroad computes the interest at a high rate and suggests that there has been a high percentage of cancellation.

American citizens ought to be interested in knowing exactly what's what in this matter and the debtor nations have a right to know, too.

Drivers Are Good Walkers

Motorists make canny walkers, according to a statistician who has been looking into the subject. The driver, when outside of his car, knows what dangers to guard against; he knows which way to look when he steps across a street; he is calm at crossings and does not forget about the car making the right-hand turn; he watches the traffic officer at street intersections and uses his own intelligence at the same time.

Very few drivers are hurt when walking. The pedestrians who get in the way of automobiles, who jay walk, who disregard traffic signals and generally make nuisances of themselves—not to mention casualties—are the non-drivers.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 31.—One of the bland optimists who figure out statistics that do not mean a thing discovers the average New Yorker spends 28 hours a year riding on elevators. And if he walked up and down the same distances it would require five weeks and two days.

New York at one time was distinguished for elevator manners. It used to be men removed hats for a lady passenger and stood aside for her to enter first. The man who removes his hat today is likely to receive an avalanche of dirty looks and a sly kick on the shin.

And on entering an elevator it is every man for himself. Only a few women operators are left from service during the war. It is a man's job anyway. Uptown New York has apparently discovered some virtue in the West Indian same impertinence for they are in the majority as operators.

In well kept apartment houses the elevator operator is the ex-officio house detective. He sees all guests and is able to tell just where wild parties are being held and how late. The espionage is a part of his job.

In one de luxe apartment house on Park avenue the elevators are equipped with hidden electrical attachments that broadcast elevator conversations into the office of the manager. It has been found that tenants will more than likely voice complaints to elevator operators than to the management.

In the swank hotels operators must don silver buckled knee breeches after 6 o'clock in the evening. In former years their uniform was merely a braided cap, but today they are costumed like major domos. In one apartment house they wear powdered wigs. Soon we will be calling elevators "lifts."

Salaries are not large but with tips they are able to live comfortably. In the office buildings operators are seldom tipped save at Christmas time when they hang coin boxes, wreathed in holly on the wall and later divide the spoils.

Three is an automobile of expansive design often see on prominent thoroughfares that has a live brown monkey chained to the windshield. It swings about to perilous positions as the car bowls along and apparently enjoys the drive to the fullest. The car and monkey are owned by a cabaret hostess.

There is the tale of a prize fighter who had finished a gruelling 10-round bout at the Garden with multiple dents and protuberances. His manager escorted him from his dressing room to a nearby cafe and said to the waiter: "Bring him two Hamburger steaks, a hatful of fried potatoes and a bowl of coffee. He sure had a hard day at the office."

And after a sunny clear day the police reports of crime are rather astonishingly meagre as a rule.

HASKIN'S LETTER

Big Game Increasing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Correcting the general belief that big game is becoming extinct in the United States, the United States Forest Service has just published its annual census of the big game of the national forests and finds that many varieties are on the increase. While this increase may not offset losses outside the forest reserves, the forest rangers believe that most varieties covered in their reports are pretty well holding their own everywhere. Many states in the west have set aside large game refuges, and on the whole there is evidence that our game supplies are holding up.

Will C. Barnes, assistant forester, who compiled the annual census from field reports, believes that it is a very fair estimate of the game in the national forests. Of course wild animals will not stand still and be counted, but the forest rangers covering the big timber and game country year after year come to know pretty accurately what amount of life there is in the woods.

The increase in numbers among certain animals is such as to require some means of using them, to prevent their dying of starvation, according to the Forest Service data. Thus the elk in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming, and the deer in the Kaibab Forest in Arizona, have multiplied until the government men feel it would be better to let hunters have a few more than to let them starve. Some of the game clubs and conservation associations want to let the increase go on, and to turn over all of the national forests to the game. Cattle and sheep are now permitted to graze in the forests under government authority, but wherever the feed for national game runs low, the Forest Service cuts off the permits for grazing domestic animals.

The Jackson Hole elk herd, for example, now numbers some 25,000 head, and can not find enough winter feed in the areas not under fence. The Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture has a ranch in the area and feeds hay to this herd, but several thousand acres more of hay must be raised if the herd is to be preserved at its present number. In some winters it has been cut nearly in half by cold and hunger, which destroys the calves especially.

Large Annual Increase.

The Forest Service suggests that enough feeding be arranged to keep the herd up to about present size, and that additional hunting be permitted to use the increase, which would be 4,000 to 5,000 elk a year. At present only about 1,000 are taken by hunters.

The Kaibab deer have continued to increase until there is not enough winter feed for them, and private cattle and sheep grazing is being steadily cut down in the area. Last year the government allowed some hunting and about 600 deer were killed. More hunting will be allowed this year. An interesting evidence of changing times in Arizona occurred in this forest when the Indians were given special permission to go into the preserve and hunt deer for the buckskin, which was once the sole source of clothing for the natives. The Indians did not bother to accept the permission. They are all wearing store clothes these days, and buckskin means little or nothing to them.

The wild game survey reveals that beavers are not becoming extinct, but are at least holding their own in the national forests. The estimate shows 114,000 beavers, and the rangers believe half as many more exist outside government areas. About two-fifths of those listed are in Colorado. Mountain goats and mountain sheep are also practically holding to even numbers. The current census shows 17,887 mountain goats in the national forests, an increase of about 600 over 1924, and 12,052 mountain sheep, a decrease of about 300. Especial care is being taken by the Forest Service to prevent grazing by domestic sheep in areas which would curtail the food supply of these wild species.

There are some 30,000 antelopes in the country, of which 7,500 are in the national forests, and the foresters believe this species is flourishing in the higher lands to which they have been driven as their native plans were settled by farmers and stockmen. The numbers in national forests increased almost 50 per cent last year. State game refuges have helped perpetuate the antelopes, which do not thrive in captivity.

Black and brown bears are also on the increase, largely because many states have decided that these comparatively harmless animals should be preserved rather than slaughtered as a menace. Game laws in most places now limit the killing of these bears to seasons when the fur is of best quality. There are some 46,000 of them in national forests.

Deer are steadily on the increase, being carefully protected by game laws. The report shows 605 000 in national forests where 550,000 were recorded a year earlier. This increase was recorded despite the necessary slaughter of about 22,000 deer suffering from foot and mouth disease. The deer are not all in the far west by any means. The White Mountain National

"So?" droned Mr. Abrams. "Say, young man, would you do it for me a favor?"

"Sure."

"Then, please, you should look at your books and tell me how stood the account on the foist day of last month."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Big Game Increasing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Correcting the general belief that big game is becoming extinct in the United States, the United States Forest Service has just published its annual census of the big game of the national forests and finds that many varieties are on the increase. While this increase may not offset losses outside the forest reserves, the forest rangers believe that most varieties covered in their reports are pretty well holding their own everywhere. Many states in the west have set aside large game refuges, and on the whole there is evidence that our game supplies are holding up.

Will C. Barnes, assistant forester, who compiled the annual census from field reports, believes that it is a very fair estimate of the game in the national forests. Of course wild animals will not stand still and be counted, but the forest rangers covering the big timber and game country year after year come to know pretty accurately what amount of life there is in the woods.

The increase in numbers among certain animals is such as to require some means of using them, to prevent their dying of starvation, according to the Forest Service data. Thus the elk in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming, and the deer in the Kaibab Forest in Arizona, have multiplied until the government men feel it would be better to let hunters have a few more than to let them starve. Some of the game clubs and conservation associations want to let the increase go on, and to turn over all of the national forests to the game. Cattle and sheep are now permitted to graze in the forests under government authority, but wherever the feed for national game runs low, the Forest Service cuts off the permits for grazing domestic animals.

The Jackson Hole elk herd, for example, now numbers some 25,000 head, and can not find enough winter feed in the areas not under fence. The Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture has a ranch in the area and feeds hay to this herd, but several thousand acres more of hay must be raised if the herd is to be preserved at its present number. In some winters it has been cut nearly in half by cold and hunger, which destroys the calves especially.

Large Annual Increase.

The Forest Service suggests that enough feeding be arranged to keep the herd up to about present size, and that additional hunting be permitted to use the increase, which would be 4,000 to 5,000 elk a year. At present only about 1,000 are taken by hunters.

The Kaibab deer have continued to increase until there is not enough winter feed for them, and private cattle and sheep grazing is being steadily cut down in the area. Last year the government allowed some hunting and about 600 deer were killed. More hunting will be allowed this year. An interesting evidence of changing times in Arizona occurred in this forest when the Indians were given special permission to go into the preserve and hunt deer for the buckskin, which was once the sole source of clothing for the natives. The Indians did not bother to accept the permission. They are all wearing store clothes these days, and buckskin means little or nothing to them.

The wild game survey reveals that beavers are not becoming extinct, but are at least holding their own in the national forests. The estimate shows 114,000 beavers, and the rangers believe half as many more exist outside government areas. About two-fifths of those listed are in Colorado. Mountain goats and mountain sheep are also practically holding to even numbers. The current census shows 17,887 mountain goats in the national forests, an increase of about 600 over 1924, and 12,052 mountain sheep, a decrease of about 300. Especial care is being taken by the Forest Service to prevent grazing by domestic sheep in areas which would curtail the food supply of these wild species.

There are some 30,000 antelopes in the country, of which 7,500 are in the national forests, and the foresters believe this species is flourishing in the higher lands to which they have been driven as their native plans were settled by farmers and stockmen. The numbers in national forests increased almost 50 per cent last year. State game refuges have helped perpetuate the antelopes, which do not thrive in captivity.

Black and brown bears are also on the increase, largely because many states have decided that these comparatively harmless animals should be preserved rather than slaughtered as a menace. Game laws in most places now limit the killing of these bears to seasons when the fur is of best quality. There are some 46,000 of them in national forests.

Deer are steadily on the increase, being carefully protected by game laws. The report shows 605,000 in national forests where 550,000 were recorded a year earlier. This increase was recorded despite the necessary slaughter of about 22,000 deer suffering from foot and mouth disease. The deer are not all in the far west by any means. The White Mountain National

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

An East Sider of foreign birth and short term of residence in this country prospered to the extent where he graduated from the ranks of the Forsythe street sidewalk merchants and became a regular business man, with a store and showcases and everything. Also, for the first time in his life he was able to start a bank account.

One day he was engaged on the telephone by the assistant cashier of the bank where he kept his checking fund.

"Mr. Abrams," stated the cashier, "I called you up to tell you that on the first day of this month your account appears overdrawn $103."

"So?" droned Mr. Abrams. "Say, young man, would you do it for me a favor?"

"Sure."

"Then, please, you should look at your books and tell me how stood the account on the foist day of last month."

In a minute or two the bank functionary was back at the 'phone.

"Oh, Mr. Abrams," he said, "on the first day of last month you had a balance to your credit of $322.25."

"So!" shouted Mr. Abrams, "Und did I call you up?"

New System of Transmitting Phone Number Over Bell Lines

Operator Will Reply "Thank You" Instead of Repeating When Subscriber Calls.

A new system of transmitting numbers over the telephone lines will become effective at the East Liverpool exchange of the Ohio Bell Telephone company next week, according to an announcement today by Frank Swaney, commercial manager.

Hereafter when a subscriber gives a number, the operator will not repeat the number, as has been customary, but will reply, "Thank you" and make the connection without further conversation. In case the operator is in doubt as to the number given, she will ask that it be repeated.

This practice, Swaney claims, has been adopted in Akron and some of the eastern cities and has been found satisfactory. It is in line with the Bell Telephone company's policy of doing everything possible to speed up service for subscribers and at the same time bring more courtesy into the operation.

The plan will be in effect throughout the Eastern division, which, in addition to Akron and East Liverpool, includes Canton, Alliance, Youngstown and Steubenville.

If You've Ever Borrowed
A Cup of Sugar—

WHEN you must borrow a cup of sugar, or the use of the telephone or a little gas for the car, why do you unhesitatingly appeal to your neighbor?

GROCER, telephone company, filling station would eventually supply your need. But to meet the immediate contingency you call across the back-yard fence. The sugar—and it's good sugar—is handed over. That's service, prompt, efficient, honest. But there's a certain something more to that little transaction—an indefinable something that can scarcely be described in the printed word or illustrated in a catalog. It's a feeling of mutual understanding and reciprocity, as of one who, having lived long among strangers, returns again to his own people; it's the same feeling that inspires this, and our similar messages to you.

AFTER all we're more than mere merchant and patron. We're neighbors. And if service, prompt, efficient, honest, is essential to true neighborliness—and we believe it is—that's the service that we sincerely offer and promise to you.

THANK YOU

If You've Ever Borrowed
A Cup of Sugar—

WHEN you must borrow a cup of sugar, or the use of the telephone or a little gas for the car, why do you unhesitatingly appeal to your neighbor?

GROCER, telephone company, filling station would eventually supply your need. But to meet the immediate contingency you call across the back-yard fence. The sugar—and it's good sugar—is handed over. That's service, prompt, efficient, honest. But there's a certain something more to that little transaction—an indefinable something that can scarcely be described in the printed word or illustrated in a catalog. It's a feeling of mutual understanding and reciprocity, as of one who, having lived long among strangers, returns again to his own people; it's the same feeling that inspires this, and our similar messages to you.

AFTER all we're more than mere merchant and patron. We're neighbors. And if service, prompt, efficient, honest, is essential to true neighborliness—and we believe it is—that's the service that we sincerely offer and promise to you.

THANK YOU

CUMMINS RITES WILL BE HELD AT DES MOINES

STATE FUNERAL

Smith W. Brookhart Pays Tribute to Colleague's Memory.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—Members of the family of the late United States Senator Albert B. Cummins, who succumbed to a sudden attack of angina pectoris late yesterday afternoon, made tentative announcement today that funeral services would be held Monday.

Lieutenant-Governor Clem F. Kimball from his home in Council Bluffs, in the absence of Governor John Hammill in the west, today had set in motion plans for a state funeral contingent upon the aproval of the Cummins family.

While it was known that Senator Cummins had been standing the heat badly, his death was a profound shock to his family and friends.

With his two sisters, Misses Anna and Margaret Cummins, who have lived with him since the death of Mrs. Cummins several years ago, the senator returned from Washington at the close of the congressional session and established a summer residence here.

Working on Autobiography.

He had been hard at work on his autobiography with great zest, on Wednesday, and apparently was feeling better than usual. He attended a small dinner party that evening and retired in good spirits, but at midnight the household was roused and physicians were sent for.

The attack was diagnosed as angina pectoris. The senator obtained relief and spent a comparatively quiet night but as the day advanced yesterday he did not regain strength and peacefully passed away at 4:15. With him throughout the day were Mrs. Hollis Rawson, his only child, her husband and the Misses Cummins.

The strain of the campaign last spring, in which he was defeated for renomination by Smith W. Brookhart, combined with his arduous work in the senate had told greatly on him, it was said. Close friends said today they believed the aged senator's defeat for renomination was welcomed by him as a chance to rest and embark upon the writings of his political experiences, an ambition which he had long cherished.

Messages of Sympathy.

Today the news of his death had brought a flood of messages of sympathy to the family from all parts of the country. A telegram was received by Mrs. Rawson from President and Mrs. Coolidge, which was not made public.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, whose political career in Iowa started as an ardent champion of Senator Cummins, when he was regarded as a "rank insurgent," was one of the first to make a statement from his home in Washington, Iowa.

"The greater part of my political life has been spent side by side with Senator Cummins," he said. "Later disagreements can never wipe out the memory of those days. For fifteen years his picture was hung in my office beside that of Abraham Lincoln, where it hangs today."

the "jungle" is expected to have its inception today.

Arrests Expected

Arrests in the case are expected momentarily.

The "mystery man" who identified McDermott as the man with whom he was hired to murder the fearless publisher, is being heavily guarded in a jail near here.

He fears that the underworld, now the cornered quarry of the law, will strike suddenly for his life.

"The mystery man" was hired, he claims, with McDermott, to kill Mellett on the night of July 12. In the eyes of the plotters he turned "yellow" and refused to participate in the crime. The killing then was delayed until July 16.

Deny Report of Arrest.

BOSTON, July 31.—A complete checkup of Boston police stations this afternoon by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley failed to disclose the arrest of any man answering the description of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher.

Reports had been received from Ohio to the effect that a man thought to be McDermott was picked up here.

Connors Quits Case.

PITTSBURGH, July 31. — "I'm through with the Mellett murder mystery."

With these words, Detective Peter Connors, working on Pittsburgh angles of the case, withdrew today from active participation in trying to learn the identity of the slayer of Don R. Mellett, young Canton publisher killed in the midst of a campaign to stamp out vice in the Ohio city.

Connors waited all day yesterday for Ora Slater, head of the investigators, to arrive here with an unnamed witness to identify George Psialias, in jail here, against whom the Pittsburgh detective asserted he had unearthed sufficient evidence to warrant accessory charges and a grand jury probe.

Warrant for "George the Greek"

PITTSBURGH, July 31—Local authorities today received a warrant for the arrest of George Psialias, alias "George the Greek" and a copy of an indictment from Boston, in connection with a criminal assault on two men there in 1920.

The papers, sent by Michael Crowley, superintendent of Boston police to Peter P. Walsh, Pittsburgh police superintendent, allege that a man known there as George Greek, answering to the description of Psialias given much publicity in connection with the Mellett murder mystery, fled from Boston six years ago after being indicted in connection with an attack on two men there.

George Greek was released after indictment on his own recognizance in Boston after the alleged attack on Andrew Vingel and Harry Dodis, and was never recaptured.

Psialias will be formally held for Boston police, Walsh said.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31.—After an early advance in the railroad stocks today, the professionals in the stock market again concentrated their activity on the motor shares. The speculative battle was renewed in Hudson Motors, Chrysler, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland and other stocks which led the violent up turn in the market just prior to the smash in February and March.

The shorts in Hudson Motors received further punishment at the hands of the bulls when the price was advanced aggressively to 71¾ in the first period, representing a gain of about 10 points from yesterday's low. Chrysler and Studebaker were more orderly in their new advances, which added about 1½ points to their market values as compared with Friday's close. The market was overwhelmingly professional, with increasing evidence of the reckless bidding up of stock prices which precipitated the break earlier in the year.

College Men Seek Subscriptions to Pictorial Review

Five students invaded East Liverpool today, soliciting subscriptions for the Pictorial Review as a means of earning their way through college.

The young men, who are working through the Moyer Brothers store, local agents for Pictorial Patterns, will make a house-to-house canvass. They carry credentials from the publishers.

The group includes Edward H. Fox, Albert Karo and "Lo" Caplan, students at Akron university; William Rothschild, of Ohio State University, Columbus, and Jack Schoolnic of West Virginia university, Morgantown. They are making their headquarters at the Y. M. C. A.

Mayor Ralph Benedum has issued a permit to the solicitors. The Pictorial Review will pay the college tuition fee direct to the college after the workers have matriculated.

OHIOAN KIDNAPED FROM MOTOR CAR

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Police today were baffled by the alleged kidnaping of Edward Gordon, 22, from an automobile in which he and Miss Florence Kane, 19, were sitting in front of a restaurant shortly after midnight.

Miss Kane called police, saying five men drove up in another auto, overpowered Gordon, forced him into their car and sped away. She was not molested, she said.

Mexico Seizes

Mexico were on the march or actively doing guard duty.

One hundred infantry men have garrisoned the chamber of deputies to prevent pistol battles between rival groups of deputies. This action was taken at the request of the presiding officer of the chamber who pointed out that a senator, a judge, and a deputy have already been shot to death in quarrels growing out of the church government issue.

Several reports of riots which resulted in bloodshed indicated that the seizure of the churches by the government was meeting with resistance.

Movie Theatres Report Loss.

The rank and file in the anti-government army have already begun the economic boycott, which their leaders announced was not to begin until August 1. Theatres, dance halls and other places of amusement reported a considerable decline in receipts. An average of 60 per cent loss was reported in mbvie theatres throughout Mexico during the week and exhibitors predicted that the loss would exceed 90 per cent when the boycott was formally inaugurated.

The bank of Mexico as well as other financial institutions report that unusually heavy withdrawals of cash have begun. The National bank has stopped payment of checks in anticipation of a run.

Movie theatre owners will meet Monday to consider action. It is understood that many are in favor of closing the theatres, but fear to do so lest they be punished by the government.

Laborers in Charge of Buildings.

Orders for the seizure of the churches were issued by Attorney General Romeo Ortega. Ortega is understood to have been actuated by a desire to forestall the churches being delivered to lay committees of eight as announced by the retiring Catholic clergy.

Department of justice agents were instructed to give warning that failure to obey the orders to yield the church property would be punished severely. Municipalities have been invited to designate committees of ten to administer the churches during the boycott.

In Mexico City the Federation of Labor will take possession of 35 of the city's principal churches. Each church will be cared for by a foreman and five laborers. The foreman will receive ten pesos daily, the laborers four each, for keeping the building furnishings in good repair and protecting the art treasures from vandals and thieves.

Schismatic Catholics have requested the immediate possession of six of the largest churches in the capital.

Nine Persons Shot.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—Nine persons, mostly women, were shot and wounded early today when they resisted the attempt of federal troops to oust them from San Rafeal cathedral, one of the smaller churches in Mexico City.

The occupants of the church were first informed quietly they would have to go. When they refused firemen were summoned who drenched the worshippers with water from the fire hose. The reply of the crowd both within and without the church was to hurl stones and other missles at the invaders.

The soldiers then intervened, and returning bullets with stones, succeeded in dispersing the crowd.

General Romeo Ortega, it was reported, was struck in the head by a bottle wielded by a woman. The report was not confirmed.

Soldiers also had to be called to clear the neighboring aristocratic church of the Sacred Family, located in the Colonia Roma where many Americans reside. No casualties were reported there, however.

ELLA CINDERS AT AMERICAN

Colleen Moore Stars in Comic Strip Movie.

"Ella Cinders," the first feature length picturization of a newspaper comic strip, is on its way, with Colleen Moore starring as the extraordinary heroine of the story.

This offering, released by First National, begins an engagement at the American theatre next Monday, with the guarantee that there will be much laughter with and at the heroine and not a little audible commiseration when Fate deals unkindly with her.

In "Ella Cinders," the cartoon characters created by William Conselman and Charles Plumb, well known to many thousands of newspaper readers, are transplanted to the screen and given a dramatic motivation which is promised to result in a tensely human tale of struggle and aspiration, with humor to leaven the tragedies of the youthful heart.

The successfully sustained high standard of Miss Moore's productions and her work in them have made her name synonymous with an evening of enjoyment, and the producers promise "Ella Cinders" as among her very best efforts.

A modern Prince Charming, who toughens himself between seasons as the village iceman for a strenuous football schedule in the earlier sequences and later turns out to be a scion of wealth and breeding, is Lloyd Hughes in the production.

OFFER REWARD IN KILLING OF CROOK NEMESIS

Georgia Solicitor General's Aide is Shot to Death.

BLAME GUNMEN

Bert Donaldson, Reformed Convict, Victim of Underworld.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—With a $1.000 reward posted by his employer, Solicitor General John Boykin, and all available city detectives working on the case, little light had been shed early today on the mystery murder of Bert Donaldson, chief investigator for the solicitor general, here today, 12 hours after his body was found riddled with bullets in a hotel room.

Donaldson, who had served a prison sentence and reformed, was known as the nemesis of the Atlanta underworld. Singlehanded, he uncovered the operations of a famous million dollar ring of confidence men, and tracked members of the gang all over the country, to send them to the penitentiary for long terms. He was credited with other brilliant detective exploits.

The detectives were working on the theory that Donaldson may have been slain by Chicago gunmen, as a result of a recent trip he made to Chicago on the trail of a gunman known as Jack Wilson, under indictment for the murder of a grocer during a holdup.

Lured to Hotel Room.

Donaldson was lured to a room at the fashionable Georgian Terrace hotel Thursday night by a mysterious telephone call. There he entered a room occupied by a scar-faced man registered as "W. B. Sands, Macon, Ga." Two other men were in the room with Donaldson and "Sands," an elevator boy reported. The slayers sat in a closet in the room and fired two charges of buckshot into the detective's head as he passed the closed door. The slayers then escaped by going down the elevator, without arousing suspicion. The body was not found until 24 hours later, when a maid entered the room.

Donaldson for years was known as one of the smoothest safe crackers in the business, operating in New York, Cleveland, and other large eastern cities. On one occasion he was condemned to die for the murder of a policeman who surprised three men cracking a safe, and was shot. Shortly before he was scheduled to go to the electric chair, he was granted a new trial and eventually won his freedom.

PARADE OPENS NEW HIGHWAY

Laughlin Corners-Hookstown Road is Completed.

Formal opening of the two-mile stretch of improved road from Laughlin's Corners to Hookstown, which will take place at 5 o'clock tonight, will be featured by a community celebration.

The ceremonies will start with a parade forming in Hookstown. The procession, headed by the Ceramic City band, will traverse the new highway to Laughlin's Corners, thence back to Hookstown, where a program of speechmaking will be carried out.

John N. Mercer, near Hookstown, will be master of ceremonies. Special guests will include the Beaver county commissioners, representatives of the Pennsylvania state highway department from the Pittsburgh office, Frank Swaney, East Liverpool, Lincoln highway consul, and W. C. Lynch, Chester good roads booster.

This affair will be followed by a roast beef supper which will be served by Hookstown women in the basement of the Hookstown Presbyterian church.

Two New State Highways Established In County

New Routes Determined for Roads From East Liverpool and Lisbon and Negley to East Palestine.

Two new state highways have been established in Columbiana county by the state highway department, according to official notice received today by L. H. Johnson, clerk to the board of county commissioners.

A new route has been determined for the East Liverpool-East Palestine road through St. Clair township, and also one for the Lisbon-Negley-East Palestine road. The former highway will open the richest fruit belt in the county, while the latter route will open through traffic from the Pennsylvania line west to Lisbon to connect with the Lincoln highway.

A hearing on these roads was held at the court house at Lisbon on Nov. 13, last, which was in charge of W. C. Fawcett, of Martins Ferry, then division highway engineer. Fawcett's report was filed with the state highway department some months ago, but no decision was ever handed down.

H. E. Foreman, secretary to G. F. Schlesinger, director of the department of highways and public works, has advised the county commissioners of the entry just made upon the journal of the director of the highways as follows:

"The report of Mr. W. C. Fawcett with reference to hearing held by him on Nov. 13, 1925, at Lisbon, Ohio, for change in location of a portion of ICH 383 and establishment of new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, was presented, said inter-county highway being described as follows:

"Northerly from the north corporation line of East Liverpool through Calcutta, Fredericktown (St. Clair), Achor, Negley, to East Palestine; following the old location of ICH 502 thru Liverpool township, Sec. 34; St. Clair township, Sec. 27, 22, 21 to Calcutta; thence over a new route northeasterly thru Sec. 22, 15, 14, 11, 2, to Fredericktown (St. Clair); thence northwesterly thru Sec. 2; Middleton township, Secs., 35, 34, 27, 22, 23, 14 (Achor), 11 to Negley, joining ICH 383 as recommended below to East Palestine.

"Said change in location being described as:

"'Easterly from the east corporation line of Lisbon through Elkton, Signal, Rogers, East Palestine, Pennsylvania State line; Center township, Sec. 13, Elkrun township, Secs. 18, 19, 20, 21, (Elkton) northeasterly thru Secs. 21, 16, 9, 10, 11 (Signal) 2, 1, 12; Middleton township, Sec. 7 (Rogers) 8, 5, 4, 9, 31, 10, 11, (Negley) thence northerly thru Secs. 11, 2; Unity township, Secs. 35, 26 to East Palestine; thence easterly from the east corporation line of East Palestine over the existing Sec. A of ICH 383 to the Pennsylvania line.'

Director Schlesinger granted the change in location of a portion of ICH 383, Columbiana county, also established a new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, to be known as ICH 562, East Liverpool-East Palestine road, described above."

"I'll make it my business," Risler testified he told the man who then drew a gun and leveled it at Risler. The latter drew his own weapon and fired first, killing the stranger who was McCoy a dry agent.

The state sought to show that Risler had boasted before he would shoot any dry agents who entered his home.

J. D. Bragg, Farm Agent, Circleville, Succeeds Hogsett

COLUMBUS, July 31.—J. D. Bragg, Circleville, O., county farm bureau agent of the state welfare department, succeeds John Hogsett, who resigned a week ago. The appointment was announced today by Welfare Director John E. Harper.

Hogsett was one of the three welfare department officials charged by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe with conspiring to defraud the state by splitting commissions in the purchase of a site for a northern Ohio state institution for the feeble-minded.

ACCUSED WIDOW IN HALL-MILLS CASE RELEASED

BOND OF $15,000

Uses Clever Ruse to Disperse Throng of Curious Folk.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31.—Through a clever ruse, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, released last night under $15,000 bond from charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, early today succeeded in dispersing a throng of curious folk that gathered around her palatial home here.

An automobile loaded with baggage was first taken from the house to the railroad station. It was shipped to Ocean Grove, N. J. Later a heavily veiled woman emerged from the house.

A shout went up from the waiting throng. "There's Mrs. Hall," one man cried. The woman entered an automobile and was driven to the railroad station. The crowd followed. The woman boarded a train for New York and it was not until later that it was learned that she was Mrs. David Murray, a friend of Mrs. Hall.

After her friend's departure Mrs. Hall made preparations to leave later today for Ocean Grove for a prolonged rest to recover from the shock of her midnight arrest. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carpender, cousins, leased a cottage there for the summer sometime ago.

Indications today were that Mrs. Hall will not have to face court action before September at the earliest. State Senator Alexander Simpson, appointed special prosecutor in the case by Gov. Moore, indicated that he would not ask that the April grand jury be summoned in special session. The regular grand jury of Somerset county is not due to meet until the third Tuesday in September.

CUMMINS RITES WILL BE HELD AT DES MOINES

STATE FUNERAL

Smith W. Brookhart Pays Tribute to Colleague's Memory.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—Members of the family of the late United States Senator Albert B. Cummins, who succumbed to a sudden attack of angina pectoris late yesterday afternoon, made tentative announcement today that funeral services would be held Monday.

Lieutenant-Governor Clem F. Kimball from his home in Council Bluffs, in the absence of Governor John Hammill in the west, today had set in motion plans for a state funeral contingent upon the aproval of the Cummins family.

While it was known that Senator Cummins had been standing the heat badly, his death was a profound shock to his family and friends.

With his two sisters, Misses Anna and Margaret Cummins, who have lived with him since the death of Mrs. Cummins several years ago, the senator returned from Washington at the close of the congressional session and established a summer residence here.

Working on Autobiography.

He had been hard at work on his autobiography with great zest, on Wednesday, and apparently was feeling better than usual. He attended a small dinner party that evening and retired in good spirits, but at midnight the household was roused and physicians were sent for.

The attack was diagnosed as angina pectoris. The senator obtained relief and spent a comparatively quiet night but as the day advanced yesterday he did not regain strength and peacefully passed away at 4:15. With him throughout the day were Mrs. Hollis Rawson, his only child, her husband and the Misses Cummins.

The strain of the campaign last spring, in which he was defeated for renomination by Smith W. Brookhart, combined with his arduous work in the senate had told greatly on him, it was said. Close friends said today they believed the aged senator's defeat for renomination was welcomed by him as a chance to rest and embark upon the writings of his political experiences, an ambition which he had long cherished.

Messages of Sympathy.

Today the news of his death had brought a flood of messages of sympathy to the family from all parts of the country. A telegram was received by Mrs. Rawson from President and Mrs. Coolidge, which was not made public.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, whose political career in Iowa started as an ardent champion of Senator Cummins, when he was regarded as a "rank insurgent," was one of the first to make a statement from his home in Washington, Iowa.

"The greater part of my political life has been spent side by side with Senator Cummins," he said. "Later disagreements can never wipe out the memory of those days. For fifteen years his picture was hung in my office beside that of Abraham Lincoln, where it hangs today."

the "jungle" is expected to have its inception today.

Arrests Expected

Arrests in the case are expected momentarily.

The "mystery man" who identified McDermott as the man with whom he was hired to murder the fearless publisher, is being heavily guarded in a jail near here.

He fears that the underworld, now the cornered quarry of the law, will strike suddenly for his life.

"The mystery man" was hired, he claims, with McDermott, to kill Mellett on the night of July 12. In the eyes of the plotters he turned "yellow" and refused to participate in the crime. The killing then was delayed until July 16.

Deny Report of Arrest.

BOSTON, July 31.—A complete checkup by Boston police stations this afternoon by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley failed to disclose the arrest of any man answering the description of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher.

Reports had been received from Ohio to the effect that a man thought to be McDermott was picked up here.

Connors Quits Case.

With these words, Detective Peter Connors, working on Pittsburgh angles of the case, withdrew today from active participation in trying to learn the identity of the slayer of Don R. Mellett, young Canton publisher killed in the midst of a campaign to stamp out vice in the Ohio city.

Connors waited all day yesterday for Ora Slater, head of the investigators, to arrive here with an unnamed witness to identify George Psialias, in jail here, against whom the Pittsburgh detective asserted he had unearthed sufficient evidence to warrant accessory charges and a grand jury probe.

Warrant for "George the Greek"

PITTSBURGH, July 31—Local authorities today received a warrant for the arrest of George Psialias, alias "George the Greek" and a copy of an indictment from Boston, in connection with a criminal assault on two men there in 1920.

The papers, sent by Michael Crowley, superintendent of Boston police to Peter P. Walsh, Pittsburgh police superintendent, allege that a man known there as George Greek, answering to the description of Psialias given much publicity in connection with the Mellett murder mystery, fled from Boston six years ago after being indicted in connection with an attack on two men there.

George Greek was released after indictment on his own recognizance in Boston after the alleged attack on Andrew Vingel and Harry Dodis, and was never recaptured.

Psialias will be formally held for Boston police, Walsh said.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31.—After an early advance in the railroad stocks today, the professionals in the stock market again concentrated their activity on the motor shares. The speculative battle was renewed in Hudson Motors, Chrysler, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland and other stocks which led the violent up turn in the market just prior to the smash in February and March.

The shorts in Hudson Motors received further punishment at the hands of the bulls when the price was advanced aggressively to 71¾ in the first period, representing a gain of about 10 points from yesterday's low. Chrysler and Studebaker were more orderly in their new advances, which added about 1½ points to their market values as compared with Friday's close. The market was overwhelmingly professional, with increasing evidence of the reckless bidding up of stock prices which precipitated the break earlier in the year.

College Men Seek Subscriptions to Pictorial Review

Five students invaded East Liverpool today, soliciting subscriptions for the Pictorial Review as a means of earning their way through college.

The young men, who are working through the Moyer Brothers store, local agents for Pictorial Patterns, will make a house-to-house canvass. They carry credentials from the publishers.

The group includes Edward H. Fox, Albert Karo and "Lo" Caplan, students at Akron university; William Rothschild, of Ohio State University, Columbus, and Jack Schoolnic of West Virginia university, Morgantown. They are making their headquarters at the Y. M. C. A.

Mayor Ralph Benedum has issued a permit to the solicitors. The Pictorial Review will pay the college tuition fee direct to the college after the workers have matriculated.

OHIOAN KIDNAPED FROM MOTOR CAR

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Police today were baffled by the alleged kidnaping of Edward Gordon, 22, from an automobile in which he and Miss Florence Kane, 19, were sitting in front of a restaurant shortly after midnight.

Miss Kane called police, saying five men drove up in another auto, overpowered Gordon, forced him into their car and sped away. She was not molested, she said.

Mexico Seizes

Mexico were on the march or actively doing guard duty.

One hundred infantry men have garrisoned the chamber of deputies to prevent pistol battles between rival groups of deputies. This action was taken at the request of the presiding officer of the chamber who pointed out that a senator, a judge, and a deputy have already been shot to death in quarrels growing out of the church government issue.

Several reports of riots which resulted in bloodshed indicated that the seizure of the churches by the government was meeting with resistance.

Movie Theatres Report Loss.

The rank and file in the anti-government army have already begun the economic boycott, which their leaders announced was not to begin until August 1. Theatres, dance halls and other places of amusement reported a considerable decline in receipts. An average of 60 per cent loss was reported in movie theatres throughout Mexico during the week and exhibitors predicted that the loss would exceed 90 per cent when the boycott was formally inaugurated.

The bank of Mexico as well as other financial institutions report that unusually heavy withdrawals of cash have begun. The National bank has stopped payment of checks in anticipation of a run.

Movie theatre owners will meet Monday to consider action. It is understood that many are in favor of closing the theatres, but fear to do so lest they be punished by the government.

Laborers in Charge of Buildings.

Orders for the seizure of the churches were issued by Attorney General Romeo Ortega. Ortega is understood to have been actuated by a desire to forestall the churches being delivered to lay committees of eight as announced by the retiring Catholic clergy.

Department of justice agents were instructed to give warning that failure to obey the orders to yield the church property would be punished severely. Municipalities have been invited to designate committees of ten to administer the churches during the boycott.

In Mexico City the Federation of Labor will take possession of 35 of the city's principal churches. Each church will be cared for by a foreman and five laborers. The foreman will receive ten pesos daily, the laborers four each, for keeping the building furnishings in good repair and protecting the art treasures from vandals and thieves.

Schismatic Catholics have requested the immediate possession of six of the largest churches in the capital.

Nine Persons Shot.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—Nine persons, mostly women, were shot and wounded early today when they resisted the attempt of federal troops to oust them from San Rafeal cathedral, one of the smaller churches in Mexico City.

The occupants of the church were first informed quietly they would have to go. When they refused firemen were summoned who drenched the worshippers with water from the fire hose. The reply of the crowd both within and without the church was to hurl stones and other missles at the invaders.

The soldiers then intervened, and returning bullets with stones, succeeded in dispersing the crowd.

General Romeo Ortega, it was reported, was struck in the head by a bottle wielded by a woman. The report was not confirmed.

Soldiers also had to be called to clear the neighboring aristocratic church of the Sacred Family, located in the Colonia Roma where many Americans reside. No casualties were reported there, however.

ELLA CINDERS AT AMERICAN

Colleen Moore Stars in Comic Strip Movie.

"Ella Cinders," the first feature length picturization of a newspaper comic strip, is on its way, with Colleen Moore starring as the extraordinary heroine of the story.

This offering, released by First National, begins an engagement at the American theatre next Monday, with the guarantee that there will be much laughter with and at the heroine and not a little audible commiseration when Fate deals unkindly with her.

In "Ella Cinders," the cartoon characters created by William Conselman and Charles Plumb, well known to many thousands of newspaper readers, are transplanted to the screen and given a dramatic motivation which is promised to result in a tensely human tale of struggle and aspiration, with humor to leaven the tragedies of the youthful heart.

The successfully sustained high standard of Miss Moore's productions and her work in them have made her name synonymous with an evening of enjoyment, and the producers promise "Ella Cinders" as among her very best efforts.

A modern Prince Charming, who toughens himself between seasons as the village iceman for a strenuous football schedule in the earlier sequences and later turns out to be a scion of wealth and breeding, is Lloyd Hughes in the production.

OFFER REWARD IN KILLING OF CROOK NEMESIS

Georgia Solicitor General's Aide is Shot to Death.

BLAME GUNMEN

Bert Donaldson, Reformed Convict, Victim of Underworld.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—With a $1,000 reward posted by his employer, Solicitor General John Boykin, and all available city detectives working on the case, little light had been shed early today on the mystery murder of Bert Donaldson, chief investigator for the solicitor general, here today, 12 hours after his body was found riddled with bullets in a hotel room.

Donaldson, who had served a prison sentence and reformed, was known as the nemesis of the Atlanta underworld. Singlehanded, he uncovered the operations of a famous million dollar ring of confidence men, and tracked members of the gang all over the country, to send them to the penitentiary for long terms. He was credited with other brilliant detective exploits.

The detectives were working on the theory that Donaldson may have been slain by Chicago gunmen, as a result of a recent trip he made to Chicago on the trail of a gunman known as Jack Wilson, under indictment for the murder of a grocer during a hold-up.

Lured to Hotel Room.

Donaldson was lured to a room at the fashionable Georgian Terrace hotel Thursday night by a mysterious telephone call. There he entered a room occupied by a scar-faced man registered as "W. B. Sands, Macon, Ga." Two other men were in the room with Donaldson and "Sands," an elevator boy reported. The slayers sat in a closet in the room and fired two charges of buckshot into the detective's head as he passed the closed door. The slayers then escaped by going down the elevator, without arousing suspicion. The body was not found until 24 hours later, when a maid entered the room.

Donaldson for years was known as one of the smoothest safe crackers in the business, operating in New York, Cleveland, and other large eastern cities. On one occasion he was condemned to die for the murder of a policeman who surprised three men cracking a safe, and was shot. Shortly before he was scheduled to go to the electric chair, he was granted a new trial and eventually won his freedom.

PARADE OPENS NEW HIGHWAY

Laughlin Corners-Hookstown Road is Completed.

Formal opening of the two-mile stretch of improved road from Laughlin's Corners to Hookstown, which will take place at 5 o'clock tonight, will be featured by a community celebration.

The ceremonies will start with a parade forming in Hookstown. The procession, headed by the Ceramic City band, will traverse the new highway to Laughlin's Corners, thence back to Hookstown, where a program of speechmaking will be carried out.

John N. Mercer, near Hookstown, will be master of ceremonies. Special guests will include the Beaver county commissioners, representatives of the Pennsylvania state highway department from the Pittsburgh office, Frank Swaney, East Liverpool, Lincoln highway consul, and W. C. Lynch, Chester good roads booster.

This affair will be followed by a roast beef supper which will be served by Hookstown women in the basement of the Hookstown Presbyterian church.

Two New State Highways Established In County

New Routes Determined for Roads From East Liverpool and Lisbon and Negley to East Palestine.

Two new state highways have been established in Columbiana county by the state highway department, according to official notice received today by L. H. Johnson, clerk to the board of county commissioners.

A new route has been determined for the East Liverpool-East Palestine road through St. Clair township, and also one for the Lisbon-Negley-East Palestine road. The former highway will open the richest fruit belt in the county, while the latter route will open through traffic from the Pennsylvania line west to Lisbon to connect with the Lincoln highway.

A hearing on these roads was held at the court house at Lisbon on Nov. 13, last, which was in charge of W. C. Fawcett, of Martins Ferry, then division highway engineer. Fawcett's report was filed with the state highway department some months ago, but no decision was ever handed down.

H. E. Foreman, secretary to G. F. Schlesinger, director of the department of highways and public works, has advised the county commissioners of the entry just made upon the journal of the director of the highways as follows:

"The report of Mr. W. C. Fawcett with reference to hearing held by him on Nov. 13, 1925, at Lisbon, Ohio, for change in location of a portion of ICH 383 and establishment of new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, was presented, said inter-county highway being described as follows:

ACCUSED WIDOW IN HALL-MILLS CASE RELEASED

BOND OF $15,000

Uses Clever Ruse to Disperse Throng of Curious Folk.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31.—Through a clever ruse, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, released last night under $15,000 bond from charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, early today succeeded in dispersing a throng of curious folk that gathered around her palatial home here.

An automobile loaded with baggage was first taken from the house to the railroad station. It was shipped to Ocean Grove, N. J. Later a heavily veiled woman emerged from the house.

A shout went up from the waiting throng. "There's Mrs. Hall," one man cried. The woman entered an automobile and was driven to the railroad station. The crowd followed. The woman boarded a train for New York and it was not until later that it was learned that she was Mrs. David Murray, a friend of Mrs. Hall.

After her friend's departure Mrs. Hall made preparations to leave later today for Ocean Grove for a prolonged rest to recover from the shock of her midnight arrest. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carpender, cousins, leased a cottage there for the summer sometime ago.

Indications today were that Mrs. Hall will not have to face court action before September at the earliest. State Senator Alexander Simpson, appointed special prosecutor in the case by Gov. Moore, indicated that he would not ask that the April grand jury be summoned in special session. The regular grand jury of Somerset county is not due to meet until the third Tuesday in September.

FOGO'S REMOVAL ORDER UPHELD

Commission Sustains all Charges in Hurd Case.

Sustaining charges of drunkenness, inefficiency and failure to pay debts. as filed by Mayor W. L. Fogo, the Wellsville civil service commission ordered Harry F. Hurd, patrolman, removed from office, effective from June 26, in a decision handed down yesterday afternoon.

The decision followed a hearing conducted by the commission last Tuesday in which 11 witnesses were called by the prosecution. Hurd, tendering his resignation to the commission a short time before the hearing was opened, was not present and offered no defense.

Each of Mayor Fogo's charges was sustained in the following decision by the commission:

"In considering the testimony presented, we find—

"Sufficient evidence to sustain the charge of drunkenness, in the testimony of J. I. Durst, who testifies that on the 6th day of June, 1925, Officer Harry Hurd, while on duty, in pursuit of automobile theft suspect, entered his dwelling, staggered against his chair, upon which, he (Durst) was sitting a supper table. Said Hurd then fired three shots from his revolver at the fleeing person, shots fired from position near table. 'Hurd gave every indication of drunkenness and I smelled whisky on his breath.'

"Railroad Police Herline testified that on this same day said Hurd 'was driving police patrol at high speed on Eighteenth street; we were both in middle of street and we both swerved to our right, in so doing Hurd ran into telephone pole, smashing the patrol. I immediately went over to the scene and Hurd placed me under arrest Hurd certainly acted as though intoxicated.'

"Officer Newton testified that a call was sent into fire station this same day to come and get Hurd because he was drunk and would get in trouble.

"Further evidence sustaining charges of drunkenness at other times were furnished by Mr. John Rolley and his wife.

"The commission finds that the several charges of drunkenness against Patrolman Hurd were fully sustained by the evidence, and constitute sufficient statutory cause for the order of removal made by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

"The charge of inefficiency and gross neglect of duty was justified by the introduction of the testimony of said Harry F. Hurd give in the case of W. L. Fogo versus John H. Fultz (said testimony submitted in form of stenographic report of said Fultz trial) which shows that said Hurd was not aware of gambling houses being operated on his beat, and saw no reason why he should investigate the parking of numerous automobiles along Main street all night, without apparent reason or cause.

"The charge of failure to pay his just and lawful debts, is sustained by the evidence of Mayor W. L. Fogo, who testified that numerous requests had been made to his office to have said Harry F. Hurd pay bills of all descriptions.

"We, the members of the civil service commission of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, do hereby sustain Mayor Wallace L. Fogo, in his order of removal of Harry F. Hurd, as patrolman, and said order is affirmed.

"We, therefore, order that said Harry F. Hurd be and is hereby removed from the office of patrolman, in the classified service of the city of Wellsville," Ohio, said order to be effective from the date of the order of removal by Mayor W. L. Fogo, to wit: June 26, 1926.

"We further order that the secretary cause copies of this decision be delivered to Harry F. Hurd and Mayor W. L. Fogo.

ASK NEW TRIAL IN LOAN SUIT

Felix Anania Claims New Evidence in Watkins Case.

"Newly discovered evidence" which was not introduced in the first trial and seven other reasons are cited by Attorney Ben L. Bennett in his application for a new trial in the civil action brought by Felix Anania, Bradshaw avenue, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, decision in which was returned in favor of the defendant in municipal court last Tuesday.

The suit was based upon a loan of $300 alleged to have been made by Anania to Mrs. Watkin, when her husband Albert Watkin, was fined by Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, for a liquor violation about three years ago. Mrs. Watkin denied having received money from Anania, claiming that the signature on the back of a check introduced by the plaintiff was not her handwriting.

Anania, in his application, assets that Peter Mullen, now a resident of Florida, saw the money paid over to Mrs. Watkin when she cashed the check. This evidence, it is claimed, was not submitted when the case was heard before Judge Hanley this week.

The eight reasons set up by counsel for the plaintiff in the application for a new trial are:

"1. The court erred in admitting evidence over the objection of the plaintiff.

"2. That the verdict is not sustained by sufficient evidence and is contrary to the greater weight of the evidence.

"3. That the verdict is contrary to law.

"4. That the court erred in its charge to the jury.

"5. Said verdict was rendered for the defendant when it should have been rendered for the plaintiff.

"6. Newly discovered evidence, material to the issue, which the plaintiff, with reasonable diligence, could not have discovered and produced at the time of the trial.

"7. Other errors apparent on the face of the record.

TAX DISTRICTS TO GET FUNDS

June Distribution is Expected to Exceed $1,000,000.

Checks for the June tax settlement will not go forward to the different taxing districts of the county until probably August 15th. it was announced today. So far $216,500 in advances has been paid out upon request.

Ten school districts have asked for advances totaling $136,500, and the requests from two townships total $5,000. Three different corporations have asked for and received advances, totaling $75,000.

It is likely that the June tax distribution will amount to more than $1,000,000, although at this time, without totals of all records being obtainable, it cannot be determined just how much tax money will be distributed.

County Treasurer Jo Pike declared today that settlement sheets would be turned over to County Auditor Elmer E. Walker within the next week, and after the settlement sheet has been checked against by the late office, then the different taxing districts will be given warrants for the amounts that may be due, less the advances that have already been made.

"It is our purpose to issue these warrants just as soon as possible after we have received settlement sheets from the county treasurer," Auditor Walker announced. "We know that the districts like to receive the credits due them, and we are prepared to go to work on the settlement sheets as soon as we receive them."

Haskin's Letter

Forest in New Hampshire has about 7,000 deer in a relatively small area, and there are deer in national forests in 26 states, besides the numbers outside federal areas. California has more than 200,000 and all of the western states have large supplies.

Grizzlies Near Extinction.

Grizzly bears are on the decrease, and are nearing extinction except in Alaska. Aside from about 400 in Montana there are very few in the states. The dangerous character of the grizzly to man and beast has caused him to be hunted out, and it is doubtful whether the species will be preserved except in captivity.

Caribou are not numerous, but never were found in numbers in the states, being a more northern specie. A few small herds in Montana, Idaho and Washington seem to be holding their own. About 6,000 moose are recorded, an increase of almost a thousand in a year. They are carefully guarded by law.

Game laws are a matter of state enactment, and the Forest Service merely advises with state authorities about conditions in the forest reserve areas. Forestry officials believe the states could regulate their game stock to better advantage if their laws were more elastic. The foresters are often in position to forecast a bad winter for certain forms of game, by knowing that the numbers exceed probable feeding material. In such conditions an increase in fall hunting could well be allowed, but game laws are usually too rigid to admit such a thing.

The foresters are of the opinion that increased hunting due to automobiles has not done much harm to the big game of the country, as most of the new hunters are not expert and their kill is small. The foresters who are in the woods the year round are prone to make light of the game killing abilities of the "drug store hunters" but to exaggerate their man killing abilities. They insist also that domestic cattle on the ranges suffer greatly during the hunting season. To the huntsmen who declare that game is becoming extinct, the rangers reply that there is plenty of game if the hunters could hit it.

The Forest Service does not advocate any general loosening of game laws and protection, but the trend of Mr. Barnes' report is to indicate that game is not being wiped out and will not be so long as there remains the present amount of forest land. Alaska remains a great game country, the total of its big game life being roughly estimated by the foresters but with no pretense that they have more than a good guess at the life of the great northern woods.

Haskin's Letter

Forest in New Hampshire has about 7,000 deer in a relatively small area, and there are deer in national forests in 26 states, besides the numbers outside federal areas. California has more than 200,000 and all of the western states have large supplies.

Grizzlies Near Extinction.

Grizzly bears are on the decrease, and are nearing extinction except in Alaska. Aside from about 400 in Montana there are very few in the states. The dangerous character of the grizzly to man and beast has caused him to be hunted out, and it is doubtful whether the species will be preserved except in captivity.

Caribou are not numerous, but never were found in numbers in the states, being a more northern species. A few small herds in Montana, Idaho and Washington seem to be holding their own. About 6,000 moose are recorded, an increase of almost a thousand in a year. They are carefully guarded by law.

Game laws are a matter of state enactment, and the Forest Service merely advises with state authorities about conditions in the forest reserve areas. Forestry officials believe the states could regulate their game stock to better advantage if their laws were more elastic. The foresters are often in position to forecast a bad winter for certain forms of game, by knowing that the numbers exceed probable feeding material. In such conditions an increase in fall hunting could well be allowed, but game laws are usually too rigid to admit such a thing.

The foresters are of the opinion that increased hunting due to automobiles has not done much harm to the big game of the country, as most of the new hunters are not expert and their kill is small. The foresters who are in the woods the year round are prone to make light of the game killing abilities of the "drug store hunters" but to exaggerate their man killing abilities. They insist also that domestic cattle on the ranges suffer greatly during the hunting season. To the huntsmen who declare that game is becoming extinct, the rangers reply that there is plenty of game if the hunters could hit it.

The Forest Service does not advocate any general loosening of game laws and protection, but the trend of Mr. Barnes' report is to indicate that game is not being wiped out and will not be so long as there remains the present amount of forest land. Alaska remains a great game country, the total of its big game life being roughly estimated by the foresters but with no pretense that they have more than a good guess at the life of the great northern woods.

Turk-Nash Gets Early Start To Defeat Laughlin, 7 To 2

Five Hits and Three Errors In First Two Innings Beat Newell

Overcome Two-run Lead in Opening Frame and Swell Total in Next; Two Runners Count on McConnell's Long Circuit Smash.

BUNCHING five hits and taking advantage of three errors in the first two innings of their contest with Laughlin last evening at Patterson Field, Turk-Nash scored seven runs as against two and copped the clash with the first half winners. Inasmuch as all the run making was done in the firsts two innings, the contest finished with a 7-2 count.

Thirdbaseman Herbert of Laughlin who has been absent from the lineup for several days, had difficulty in adjusting himself to his old station. He dropped two easy assists and he had difficulty in finding the range at first base.

Eight men batted in both the first and second innings for Turk-Nash when three and four runs, respectively, were made. After that Suder permitted but two safe drives in four innings as he blanked the opposition regularly.

Laughlin began things with a dash and scored three runs on Crawford's single, Parsons' sacrifice and Finley's double. Then Pollock, pitching for the auto outfit, turned back the West Virginians for six innings.

In Danger in Fourth.

Only in the fourth was he in danger of being scored on. Then Herbert opened with a single to left. Babb flew to Eddie Bayley, who dropped the ball, but stepped on second in time to force out Herbert. W. Watson flew to E. Mundy. Aufderheide singled to right as did Hunselman. On the latter blow Mundy assisted to Schneidmiller who tabbed out Babb as he essayed to cross the plate.

Despite the fact that Umpire McKernan was on top of the play at the plate in position for close observation, Newell objected considerably to the decision.

McConnell made the big blow of the game in the second inning when, with two men on, he drove a liner to the fence in deep middle-left. He skipped from bag to bag and beat the throw to the plate. It was a fine hit and an even better exhibition of running the bases, McConnell showing no hesitation or inclination to stop at third and consequently being able to register a homer.

Schneidmiller and Earl Mundy had a couple of safe hits a piece, the latter clouting at a .667 clip for the day and the former .500.

Herbert Leads Hitters.

Herbert led his team in hitting with a single and double in three attempts. He also contributed a fine catch of a foul off J. Watson's bat in the third.

Talbott played a good game at first and, with a single to right, sent over the run that put his team in the lead in the first inning.

Crawford, singling to left in the first, reached second on Parson's sacrifice. R. Pollock to Talbott and third when Finley doubled to midd'e-right. A Bayley, barely touching the ball, threw wildly into the diamond, the ball passing third, enabling Crawford to finish and Finley to camp on the hot corner from where he scored as Herbert grounded to E. Bayley on first, the latter making the putout. Babb went out, J. Watson to Talbott.

E. Bayley was safe on Herbert's high throw to first and went to second. McConnell drove to Finley, who assisted to Herbert. In the run-about Herbert dropped the ball and the second sacker reached third safely and McConnell held up at second. Both runners scored on Schneidmiller's hard drive over second. He reached second on the throw to the plate and after D. Morgan walked, counted on Talbott's single to right. J. Watson then fanned.

E. Mundy opened the second with a single over short. E. Bayley, sacrificing, was safe on W. Watson's muff of Herbert's wide assist. McConnell drove a liner to the weeds in middle-left and circled the bases, the two on the paths counting before him. Finley threw low to first on A. Bayley's drive. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled, scoring A. Bayley. D. Morgan grounded to Babb. Talbott struck out.

MOTORS DEFEAT WELLSVILLE, 2-1

Come From Behind to Win in Final Frame.

IN a well played contest, one of the best of the City Industrial league season, Victory Motor, with Bill Mundy pitching against Patterson defeated Wellsville at Klondyke, 2 to 1, last evening.

With the count 1 to 0 against them Victory Motors put over the tying and winning run without a single retirement in their half of the sixth, the final period of the contest, with darkness was impending.

Mundy sent a safe drive past second in that interim. Buzzard drew a pass. Yocum singled over short, scoring the former major leaguer. C. Coleman singled through short enabling Buzzard to finish which ended the contest.

Not until the fifth did either side score. Then Wellsville sent a man around. Dustman opened with a single between first and second. He stole second and third successively from where he counted on Pollock's low throw to Yocum. Wagner and Patterson fanned. James was hit by a pitched ball. Roger fanned, but was safe on Mundy's wild throw to Pollock.

Mundy allowed but four hits and fanned eight men. He walked but one.

Patterson fanned one and passed four. He allowed six singles.

11 ENTERED IN RICHEST RACE

HOMEWOOD, Ill., July 31.—The world's richest race, the eighteenth renewal of the American derby, will be run this afternoon at the Washington park race track with eleven probable starters.

A purse of $100,000 has been put up to bring the race back to its former glory. Only a quarter of a century ago it was known as the most famous race track classic in America.

Track officials' expectations of a crowd of 50,000 were somewhat lowered when rain began falling early this morning.

Due to delaying the running of the derby from July 10 until today and the uncertainty of mutuel betting being allowed the list of entries for such an opulent event is almost pitiful. Only eleven three-year-olds have responded in the overnight entries.

Display, winner of the Preakness stakes and second to Crusader in the Coney Island derby is looked upon as choice favorite. Black Maria another eastern color bearer is next in popular esteem.

Some doubt is expressed as to wether or not Baggenbaggage, named with Boot to Boot as the Bradley entry, will go to the post. According to every report available Baggenbaggage is not in trim.

And it doesn't mean anything when you have.

ACMES DEFEAT DE MOLAYS, 10-3

The Acme baseball club annexed another scalp in a fast seven-inning clash last evening at Columbian park, defeating the DeMolays, 10 to 3.

Mackey pitched effectively for the Acmes throughout. Wilson, who essayed mound duties for the DeMolays, was pounded from the slab in the sixth.

Because the clubhead rather drags in the first three-fourths of the back swing when the back swing is initiated by a body movement, the player will have the feeling that his hands are absolutely controlling things. This is as it should be. Also this dragging feeling of the clubhead promotes a keen sensitivity in the hands. The club having been taken to the top in this manner, it becomes perfectly natural for the player to lead off through his hips in the forward swing. He has then but to add the refinements which will readily suggest themselves, such as keeping the left shoulder up, the head still, eye on the ball and so on. Buccaneers' Pennant Task Is Simplified

Robins Muff Opportunity to Advance; Then Giants Follow Suit, and Now Chicago Cubs, Conceded Chance, Also Fall Upon Evil Days.

By Garry Schumacher.

NEW YORK, July 31.—As the National league flag race progresses the task of the front-running Pirates becomes more simplified. For, one by one, their pursuers are knocking themselves out of the race.

First it was the Robins who ingloriously muffed the opportunity to advance. Out of fourteen games with the Pirates and the Reds, they won but five, a performance that completely eliminated them from pennant consideration.

Then the Giants took a hand. A successful western tour put them into the pennant picture, and many close observers expressed the opinion that eventually they would be the team to contest Pittsburgh's right to another pennant. But three straight lickings at the Polo grounds, two of them from the Pirates, just about reads them out of the party.

Cubs Drop Back.

And now we have the Chicago Cubs. They were conceded a chance, too, as they entrained for their tour of the eastern seaboard, if only for their hustle and fighting qualities. But they too have fallen upon evil days—three straight at Boston and at Brooklyn have dropped them to the brink of the second division.

Failure to hit is the explanation for their sudden flop. They were beaten in two games at the Hub by the scores of 1 to 0 and 3 to 2, the second defeat being sustained after fourteen innings, and yesterday they succumbed to Burleigh Grimes by a 4 to 1 tally.

As these scores indicate the Chicago pitching was decidedly high class, but without batting support.

Turk-Nash Gets Early Start To Defeat Laughlin, 7 To 2

Five Hits and Three Errors In First Two Innings Beat Newell

Overcome Two-run Lead in Opening Frame and Swell Total in Next; Two Runners Count on McConnell's Long Circuit Smash.

BUNCHING five hits and taking advantage of three errors in the first two innings of their contest with Laughlin last evening at Patterson Field, Turk-Nash scored seven runs as against two and copped the clash with the first half winners. Inasmuch as all the run making was done in the firsts two innings, the contest finished with a 7-2 count.

Thirdbaseman Herbert of Laughlin who has been absent from the lineup for several days, had difficulty in adjusting himself to his old station. He dropped two easy assists and he had difficulty in finding the range at first base.

Eight men batted in both the first and second innings for Turk-Nash when three and four runs, respectively, were made. After that Suder permitted but two safe drives in four innings as he blanked the opposition regularly.

Laughlin began things with a dash and scored three runs on Crawford's single, Parsons' sacrifice and Finley's double. Then Pollock, pitching for the auto outfit, turned back the West Virginians for six innings.

In Danger In Fourth.

Only in the fourth was he in danger of being scored on. Then Herbert opened with a single to left. Babb flew to Eddie Bayley, who dropped the ball, but stepped on second in time to force out Herbert. W. Watson flew to E. Mundy. Aufderheide singled to right as did Hunselman. On the latter blow Mundy assisted to Schneidmiller who tabbed out Babb as he essayed to cross the plate.

Despite the fact that Umpire McKernan was on top of the play at the plate in position for close observation, Newell objected considerably to the decision.

McConnell made the big blow of the game in the second inning when, with two men on, he drove a liner to the fence in deep middle-left. He skinped from bag to bag and beat the throw to the plate. It was a fine hit and an even better exhibition of running the bases, McConnell showing no hesitation or inclination to stop at third and consequently being able to register a homer.

Schneidmiller and Earl Mundy had a couple of safe hits a piece, the latter clouting at a .667 clip for the day and the former .500.

Herbert Leads Hitters.

Herbert led his team in hitting with a single and double in three attempts. He also contributed a fine catch of a foul off J. Watson's bat in the third.

Talbott played a good game at first and, with a single to right, sent over the run that put his team in the lead in the first inning.

Crawford, singling to left in the first, reached second on Parson's sacrifice. R. Pollock to Talbott and third when Finley doubled to midd'e-right. A Bayley, barely touching the ball, threw wildly into the diamond, the ball passing third, enabling Crawford to finish and Finley to camp on the hot corner from where he scored as Herbert grounded to E. Bayley on first, the latter making the putout. Babb went out, J. Watson to Talbott.

E. Bayley was safe on Herbert's high throw to first and went to second. McConnell drove to Finley, who assisted to Herbert. In the run-about Herbert dropped the ball and the second sacker reached third safely and McConnell held up at second. Both runners scored on Schneidmiller's hard drive over second. He reached second on the throw to the plate and after D. Morgan walked, counted on Talbott's single to right. J. Watson then fanned.

E. Mundy opened the second with a single over short. E. Bayley, sacrificing, was safe on W. Watson's muff of Herbert's wide assist. McConnell drove a liner to the weeds in middle-left and circled the bases, the two on the paths counting before him. Finley threw low to first on A. Bayley's drive. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled, scoring A. Bayley. D. Morgan grounded to Babb. Talbott struck out.

The reserves ran wild on the bases, swiping 14 sacks, Moore, with 5, and Campbell, with 3, leading. Campbell had a perfect day at bat, getting three hits in three trips to the plate. Greenspun starred for Newell, making several sensational stops. Their victory gives the Reserves six in a row.

But three straight lickings at the Polo grounds, two of them from the Pirates, just about reads them out of the party.

Cubs Drop Back.

And now we have the Chicago Cubs. They were conceded a chance, too, as they entrained for their tour of the eastern seaboard, if only for their hustle and fighting qualities. But they too have fallen upon evil days—three straight at Boston and at Brooklyn have dropped them to the brink of the second division.

Failure to hit is the explanation for their sudden flop. They were beaten in two games at the Hub by the scores of 1 to 0 and 3 to 2, the second defeat being sustained after fourteen innings, and yesterday they succumbed to Burleigh Grimes by a 4 to 1 tally.

As these scores indicate the Chicago pitching was decidedly high class, but without batting support.

Golfers Find Lions On African Course; At 19th Hole; Maybe

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, July 31.—Golf has its perils on the courses at Boira, for a lion and a lioness have made their homes there. An armed hunt by golfers resulted in the death of the loin, but the lioness is still a hazard.

FIRE IS RAGING IN COAL MINE

Tipple Blaze Results in Loss Estimated at $50,000.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Fire which destroyed the tipple of the Corona Coal company mine at Hepzibah, near here, with damage estimated at $50,000, today had spread to the mine shafts as firemen, handicapped by lack of water, battled to save the mine from total loss.

Firemen worked throughout the night with the assistance of volunteers from neighboring mine camps to prevent spread of the flames, but were practically helpless as flames had cut all electric light and telephone wires, and no water was available.

Two miners, trapped in the shaft when the flames broke out, climbed through the smoke and fire to safety. They were both overcome by smoke as they staggered out of the danger zone, but were revived.

Fire Chief S. R. Hoffman, of Clarksburg, was called to Hepzebah when the fire broke out but had returned here today. He was of the opinion that little could be done to fight the flames in view of the lack of water and apparatus.

UNION SERVICE HERE TOMORROW

The last of a series of union meetings of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the latter church. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the former church, will be the speaker.

The meetings which began six weeks ago have been successful, according to opinions of pastors and members of the respective congregations. It is estimated that the total attendance has been 100 per cent greater than it had been in the usual meetings of the three combined churches.

GREENE TOWNSHIP ROAD IS OPENED

Recently improved road between Laughlin's corner and Hookstown was formally opened to traffic this afternoon with a parade participated in by residents of that section of Green township.

Lodge Picnic Here.

Large crowd is attending the annual picnic of the Sons of St. George being held today at Rock Springs park. Sport program was featured during the afternoon.

Episcopal Church Services.

Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector, will have charge of the services tomorrow morning in St. Matthew's Episcopal church.

Salem Team Here Today.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPORTS MOUNT

West Virginia exported commodities valued at $9,570,561 during the first three months of the current year, an increase of $1,575,650 over its $7,994,911 shipments in the corresponding period of 1925, according to a statement made public today by the department of commerce. This increased export activity enabled the state to finish the first quarter in 25th position in the exporting race of all states, as compared with its position of 30th at the conclusion of the first quarter last year.

Foreign shipments of coal predominate among the other exports from West Virginia during the opening quarter of this year and were valued at $6,855,738. Exports of wood and manufactures of wood ranked second in importance with a value of $497,483; shipments of iron and steel plates sheets, etc., followed with a value of $401,557; exports of cotton manufactures ranked fourth with a value of $360,204, and foreign sales of wood pulp brought up the rear with a total of $259,092.

BROOKE COUNTY ARRESTS CLIMB

Records on the books of Sheriff Robert M. Lowe today revealed that a total of 990 arrests have been made in Brooke county since the present administration assumed office on January 1, 1925.

Effective August 1, the county treasurer's office will be located in the Henry Zilliken property on Main street, opposite the city-county building, in Wellsburg. All tax collections will be made at the new quarters in the future. The change of the location of the county office was deemed expedient because of crowded conditions said to exist in the county building where the sheriff's and treasurer's offices occupied teh same room.

Washington and the White Sox, who have been doing the Alphonso and Gaston act over fifth place, put on the show again. The Sox overcame a three run lead and won out in the ninth, 5 to 4, jumping back to the head of the second division.

The Browns succumbed to the cyclonic Yankees in the eleventh, 10 to 8, for the fourth time in succession. It was the Hugmen's ninth straight victory and Shocker's fifteenth triumph of the season.

Babe Ruth chipped in with his thirty-second homer, but he is nine homers or 22 games behind the record.

FIRE IS RAGING IN COAL MINE

Tipple Blaze Results in Loss Estimated at $50,000.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Fire which destroyed the tipple of the Corona Coal company mine at Hepzibah, near here, with damage estimated at $50,000, today had spread to the mine shafts as firemen, handicapped by lack of water, battled to save the mine from total loss.

Firemen worked throughout the night with the assistance of volunteers from neighboring mine camps to prevent spread of the flames, but were practically helpless as flames had cut all electric light and telephone wires, and no water was available.

Two miners, trapped in the shaft when the flames broke out, climbed through the smoke and fire to safety. They were both overcome by smoke as they staggered out of the danger zone, but were revived.

Fire Chief S. R. Hoffman, of Clarksburg, was called to Hepzebah when the fire broke out but had returned here today. He was of the opinion that little could be done to fight the flames in view of the lack of water and apparatus.

UNION SERVICE HERE TOMORROW

The last of a series of union meetings of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the latter church. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the former church, will be the speaker.

The meetings which began six weeks ago have been successful, according to opinions of pastors and members of the respective congregations. It is estimated that the total attendance has been 100 per cent greater than it had been in the usual meetings of the three combined churches.

GREENE TOWNSHIP ROAD IS OPENED

Recently improved road between Laughlin's corner and Hookstown was formally opened to traffic this afternoon with a parade participated in by residents of that section of Green township.

Lodge Picnic Here.

Large crowd is attending the annual picnic of the Sons of St. George being held today at Rock Springs park. Sport program was featured during the afternoon.

Episcopal Church Services.

Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector, will have charge of the services tomorrow morning in St. Matthew's Episcopal church.

Salem Team Here Today.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPORTS MOUNT

West Virginia exported commodities valued at $9,570,561 during the first three months of the current year, an increase of $1,575,650 over its $7,994,911 shipments in the corresponding period of 1925, according to a statement made public today by the department of commerce. This increased export activity enabled the state to finish the first quarter in 25th position in the exporting race of all states, as compared with its position of 30th at the conclusion of the first quarter last year.

Foreign shipments of coal predominate among the other exports from West Virginia during the opening quarter of this year and were valued at $6,855,738. Exports of wood and manufactures of wood ranked second in importance with a value of $497,483; shipments of iron and steel plates sheets, etc., followed with a value of $401,557; exports of cotton manufactures ranked fourth with a value of $360,204, and foreign sales of wood pulp brought up the rear with a total of $259,092.

BROOKE COUNTY ARRESTS CLIMB

Records on the books of Sheriff Robert M. Lowe today revealed that a total of 990 arrests have been made in Brooke county since the present administration assumed office on January 1, 1925.

Effective August 1, the county treasurer's office will be located in the Henry Zilliken property on Main street, opposite the city-county building, in Wellsburg. All tax collections will be made at the new quarters in the future. The change of the location of the county office was deemed expedient because of crowded conditions said to exist in the county building where the sheriff's and treasurer's offices occupied teh same room.

Washington and the White Sox, who have been doing the Alphonso and Gaston act over fifth place, put on the show again. The Sox overcame a three run lead and won out in the ninth, 5 to 4, jumping back to the head of the second division.

The Browns succumbed to the cyclonic Yankees in the eleventh, 10 to 8, for the fourth time in succession. It was the Hugmen's ninth straight victory and Shocker's fifteenth triumph of the season.

Babe Ruth chipped in with his thirty-second homer, but he is nine homers or 22 games behind the record.

STATE CROPS HIT HARD BY STORMS

The loss of crops in the northern part of the state due to hail and storms is estimated at $300,000 by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau office, at Parkersburg in the report for the wek ending July 27.

The report follows:

"The temperature was unusually high until Saturday, the maximum readings ranging generally from about 90 degrees to slightly above 100 degrees. The temperature was about normal for the last three days.

"Destructive hail fell in sections of northern Preston county. The loss to crops, windows and roofings was approximately $300,000. Heavy hail also fell in sections of eastern Berkeley county.

"Corn made rapid growth, is generally in good condition, and is mostly tassled.

"Potatoes are nearly ready to dig. Early varieties are marketed. Fair to excellent condition, but some fields are blighting.

"Much hay and oats harvested during the week, yields being mostly short.

LAMBS IN STATE SHOW DECREASE

West Virginia's lamb crop this year is estimated to be over 14 percent smaller than it was in 1925, according to recent information obtained by Barnard Gibbs, of the West Virginia crop and livestock deporting service. The survey was made through the rural carriers of the post office department and shows that the decrease in number of lambs living on June 1, or sold before that date as compared to the same date last year, is due to a decrease in number saved, rather than a decrease in breeding stock.

The number of breeding ewes one year old and over, on farms of the state was estimated as being the same this year as last or 329,000 head, but the number of lambs saved per one hundred head of breeding ewes averaged only 98.9 this year as compared to 115.5 last year. This indicates that the total number of lambs saved this year is 325,000 head as compared to 380,000 head in 1925.

Ceramic tonight.

PUBLIC WANTS "HEART STUFF"

So Says Star in "Fascinating Youth" at Ceramic.

"What does the public want in motion pictures?"

Ralph Lewis, well known character actor, says he knows, and to prove it, cites his own career of more than 30 years on the stage and screen.

Lewis plays the role of "John Ward" in "Fascinating Youth," the picture Sam Wood directed with the Paramount Junior Stars in the leading roles, which comes to the Ceramic on Monday.

"The public wants 'heart stuff,'" says Lewis.

"My own experience, I think, proves that sentiment is the most powerful emotion in motion pictures. I've enacted every kind of stage role since I left Northwestern University in 1894 to join a traveling stock company. I've played all sorts of screen roles since entering pictures.

"But, I'll admit—strange as it may seem, coming from an actor—that I didn't make any great impression on the public with my characterizations. In the industry, to the casting directors, I was 'just another character actor.' Then several years ago, there was a change, which I didn't even realize at first.

"I began to get more calls for my services. Writers began to ask for interviews. It took me by surprise, and I sat down and tried to analyze what it was all about.

"My conclusion, which I think a sound one, was easily arrived at: it was because I had begun to do sentimental, human characterizations of the American home.

"I had done harder work, probably, in previous pictures, such as the carpet-bagger in 'The Birth of a Nation' and 'Pere Grandet' in Rex Ingram's 'The Conquering Power,' but these characters, for the most part, had been unsympathetic. It was only when I consciously tried to direct my appeal to the heart rather than to the intellect, that I made my greatest success."

EAST END

VISITING PASTORS TO FILL PULPITS

Pulpits of three local churches will be occupied tomorrow by visiting ministers.

STATE CROPS HIT HARD BY STORMS

The loss of crops in the northern part of the state due to hail and storms is estimated at $300,000 by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau office, at Parkersburg in the report for the wek end ing July 27.

The report follows:

"The temperature was unusually high until Saturday, the maximum readings ranging generally from about 90 degrees to slightly above 100 degrees. The temperature was about normal for the last three days.

"Destructive hail fell in sections of northern Preston county. The loss to crops, windows and roofings was approximately $300,000. Heavy hail also fell in sections of eastern Berkeley county.

"Corn made rapid growth, is generally in good condition, and is mostly tasseled.

"Potatoes are nearly ready to dig. Early varieties are marketed. Fair to excellent condition, but some fields are blighting.

"Much hay and oats harvested during the week, yields being mostly short.

LAMBS IN STATE SHOW DECREASE

West Virginia's lamb crop this year is estimated to be over 14 percent smaller than it was in 1925, according to recent information obtained by Barnard Gibbs, of the West Virginia crop and livestock deporting service. The survey was made through the rural carriers of the post office department and shows that the decrease in number of lambs living on June 1, or sold before that date as compared to the same date last year, is due to a decrease in number saved, rather than a decrease in breeding stock.

The number of breeding ewes one year old and over, on farms of the state was estimated as being the same this year as last or 329,000 head, but the number of lambs saved per one hundred head of breeding ewes averaged only 98.9 this year as compared to 115.5 last year. This indicates that the total number of lambs saved this year is 325,000 head as compared to 380,000 head in 1925.

PUBLIC WANTS "HEART STUFF"

So Says Star in "Fascinating Youth" at Ceramic.

"What does the public want in motion pictures?"

Ralph Lewis, well known character actor, says he knows, and to prove it, cites his own career of more than 30 years on the stage and screen.

Lewis plays the role of "John Ward" in "Fascinating Youth," the picture Sam Wood directed with the Paramount Junior Stars in the leading roles, which comes to the Ceramic on Monday.

"The public wants 'heart stuff,'" says Lewis.

"My own experience, I think, proves that sentiment is the most powerful emotion in motion pictures. I've enacted every kind of stage role since I left Northwestern University in 1894 to join a traveling stock company. I've played all sorts of screen roles since entering pictures.

"But, I'll admit—strange as it may seem, coming from an actor—that I didn't make any great impression on the public with my characterizations. In the industry, to the casting directors, I was 'just another character actor.' Then several years ago, there was a change, which I didn't even realize at first.

"I began to get more calls for my services. Writers began to ask for interviews. It took me by surprise, and I sat down and tried to analyze what it was all about.

"My conclusion, which I think a sound one, was easily arrived at: it was because I had begun to do sentimental, human characterizations of the American home.

"I had done harder work, probably, in previous pictures, such as the carpet-bagger in 'The Birth of a Nation' and 'Pere Grandet' in Rex Ingram's 'The Conquering Power,' but these characters, for the most part, had been unsympathetic. It was only when I consciously tried to direct my appeal to the heart rather than to the intellect, that I made my greatest success."

CLAY MINE WORKER IS KILLED

More High Prices.
Female Impersonators.
Coolidge's One Term.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

NEW high prices for Steel stock, another new and higher price for General Motors yesterday; 232,000 shares of Steel sold forced the price to $146; 392,600 shares of General Motors sold in a day forced the price to $191. A while since it was $118. Buyers must feel like men that walk on iron beams at the top of skyscrapers. A long distance to drop if you do drop. But at least they are buying, not selling, and that's common sense in this country.

THERE 's excitement because Samuel Insull, who controls electric power in Chicago, contributed money to all senatorial candidates. Mr. Insull must protect his stockholders. Somebody will be elected to the senate, and everybody asks for money. If you refused one, he might be elected. Senators are powerful. Corporation gifts to candidates are really accident insurance.

POWERFUL is habit. In Japan no women were on the stage. Japanese men played female roles. Now Japanese women act and the public demands that they imitate, in every detail, the female impersonators. A Japanese girl, to be an actress, must learn how a man acts when he pretends to be a woman.

Here, if a man wants to buy a seat in the senate, he must learn how old senators used to act, when senators were statesmen, and elected because voters knew them by name, not because friends were willing to contribute a million dollars to help them on $45,000 salary in six years.

HENRY FORD says: "Mr. Coolidge can be re-elected" and thinks the third term idea" would not interfere.

Millions are convinced that President Coolidge will be re-elected. As to a third term, that is not involved. President Coolidge has been elected president of the United States once and George Washington's idea was that a president in power should not use that power to cause his re-election continuously. He felt that two elections were enough. Calvin Coolidge probably will have two elections. Thus far he has had only one.

A YOUNG man in Hanover married three times, said he was absent minded and forgot his marriages. Kind court, believing his story, put him in jail for one month. Perhaps the judge remembered how Hegel appeared before his class at Heidelberg

PLAN CANTON 'JUNGLE' CLEAN-UP AS ONE-TIME CONVICT IS TRAILED

HE'S WANTED AS "TRIGGER MAN"

This Bertillon photo of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, made while he was confined at the army prison at Atlanta, Ga., is being scattered all over the United States in the hope that police officials of other districts will help in apprehending him. McDermott has been named as the "trigger man" in the brutal murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, shot down in front of his garage by three men.

"MYSTERY MAN" IS UNDER GUARD

Joseph Roach, Famous Chicago Attorney, Who Has Put 60 Officials Behind Prison Bars, on Job.

CANTON, O., July 31.—Ora Slater, chief of the investigation into the murder of Don R. Mellet, announced today that the Boston police are holding a man believed to be Patrick E. McDermott of Cleveland, wanted in connection with the killing of the publisher.

Slater asked Boston authorities to check up on McDermott's Bertillion measuremonts and asked that a photograph of the suspect be rushed here.

The mystery witness being in jail near here who was hired with McDermott to murder and then backed out at the critical moment, will be asked to identify the picture of the Boston suspect.

Roach and Hexamer Confer.

While the greatest gallery of criminal catchers ever known to this city were gradually drawing tangible evidence out of what once appeared a bottomless mystery, the whole nation joined today in the hunt for McDermott.

Joseph Roach, famous Chicago attorney, whose "clean-up" activities have put no less than 60 officials behind prison bars, went into conference with Earl Hexamer, acting chief of police, early this morning. Roach late yesterday was named by Mayor S. M. Swarts as advisory counsel to Hexamer.

FRANK RISLER ACQUITTED OF M'COY KILLING

Toronto Man Found Not Guilty of Dry Agent's Death.

5-HOUR VERDICT

Raider Was Fatally Shot at Accused's Home.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 31—Frank Risler, 54-year-old tin smith, was a happy man today. A jury of eight women and four men late last night acquitted him of the murder of John C. McCoy, dry raider, and former Chester, W. Va. minister, whom Risler shot and killed on April 29 when the officer made a liquor raid on the Risler home.

The jury deliberated five hours. When it made its report, the courtroom was jammed. The crowd cheered and threw hats and coats in the air when the verdict was read.

The jury's report was signed by Foreman W. F. Graham of Toronto, Risler's home town. On the first two ballots the jury voted 11 to 1 for acquittal.

Risler testified during the five-day trial that he came home on the day of the shooting and found a strange, bearded man in the kitchen. He asked him what he was doing there and Houses of Worship Turned Over to City Committee.

BUSINESS HIT

Supporters of Church Retaliate With Economic Boycott.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—The great struggle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church is in full progress today.

The government appears to have the upper hand for the moment, having taken possession of the churches and turned them over to municipal committees, as well as having seized and sealed all church buildings not actually used for divine services.

Tomorrow May Be Crucial Day.

The supporters of the church have retaliated with an economic boycott which is already injuring business and threatening industrial paralysis.

There have been a few clashes, but no incidents of major importance as yet.

The government agents, police and troops are under instructions to quell any disorders.

Tomorrow may prove the crucial day, as the churches will be open only for services by laymen, while the supporters of the government will stage a great demonstration.

The situation has been aggravated by the action of the government in inviting Monsignor Crespi, in charge of the apostolic legation, to leave Mexico, without any announcement of the charges made against him. The priests who left their churches at midnight last night are in retirement, but it is understood that they are under the surveillance of government agents.

Several Reports of Riots.

The process of taking possession of the churches themselves was rapidly being effected throughout the nation by troops. All available soldiery in

200 Attend E. Liverpool Society Picnic On Coast

LOS ANGELES, Cay., July 31.—The thirteenth annual picnic of the East Liverpool and Wellsville association of residents now in Los Angeles and vicinity was held July 24 at Sycamore Grove park. Two hundred former residents of the pottery and mill cities attended.

As no gathering was held in 1925 owing to the illness of Edward Hassey, one of the sponsors of the organization, some doubt had been expressed as to whether or not the annual picnic could be successfully revived. The attendance was sufficient to dispel all doubts of this kind, and to assure the continuation of the picnic as an annual event.

Luncheon was served at noon and dinner in the evening. At the midday gathering the usual business program was conducted. Officers were re-elected. They are:

GRANT DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF $75,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE, ADOPTION OF WHICH MEANS $40,000 GIFT

Pointing out that Newell, with an investment of $64.51 per enrolled pupil, has less property than any of the four school zones in Hancock county the Grant district board of education today addressed its final appeal to the electors to approve the $75,000 bond issue for a new elementary and high school to be submitted at the primary election next Tuesday.

The vote on the proposal follows an offer made by the Homer Laughlin China company and W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the company, of cash contributions totaling $30,000, as well as a site with a market value of approximately $10,000, by the North American Manufacturing company, all Newell interests, for a new school.

A statement issued by the district board shows that the steel town of Weirton, in the lower end of Hancock county, has an investment of $272.73 per pupil registered in the schools; Chester, $162.55, and New Cumberland, $150.64. In other words, the investment in Newell is less than one-fourth of that in Weirton and less than half of that in Chester and New Cumberland.

Comparison of Levies.

Other figures reveal that only $36.42 cents was spent for each pupil enrolled in the Grant district schools last year compared with $37.46 spent in Clay district; $42.96 in New Cumberland, $52.84 in Butler district and $73.74 in Chester.

But one other school zone in the county—Clay district in which no high school is maintained had a lower levy for school purposes during 1925-26 than Grant district. New Cumberland headed the districts with a $1.90 levy per $100 valuation. Butler district, with its big tax duplicate including the steel mills at Weirton, was second with a levy of $1.60. The Chester independent school district was third with $1.44 while Grand district was fourth with $1.21. The levy in Clay district, which includes Pughtown with elementary schools only, was 82 cents per $100 valuation. Considering the districts which maintain high schools, Grant district's school levy last year was the lowest in the county.

"At present Grant district is paying a considerable sum for temporary buildings, totally unfitted for the purpose, to provide for the overflow from its one school," the board's statement reads. "A new building would not only give the children proper school facilities, but the expense thus eliminated would aid materially in meeting the interest on the bonds."

Corporations and public utilities doing business in Grant district pay 50 per cent or more of the taxes levied and collected in the district and hence will pay the greater part of the cost in the construction of the new school if the bond issue is approved, it is pointed out.

If the bond issue is adopted, the district school board will improve facilities at the Grandview school, Lawrenceville, back of Chester, as well as erect a new building in Newell.

"It is to the interest of all voters of Grant district to support the bond issue from a purely selfish point of view, but it is of far greater importance to them to support it because of the better opportunity it gives the children of the district to secure an education," the statement concludes.

Should the bond issue be approved, the district school board will rush the necessary legislation in an effort to complete the new structure at the earliest possible date. The site selected is part of the old country club grounds, almost opposite the home of A. V. Bleininger, chemist at the Homer Laughlin China company's plant.

NEW high prices for Steel stock, another new and higher price for General Motors yesterday; 232,000 shares of Steel sold forced the price to $146; 392,600 shares of General Motors sold in a day forced the price to $191. A while since it was $118. Buyers must feel like men that walk on iron beams at the top of skyscrapers. A long distance to drop if you do drop. But at least they are buying, not selling, and that's common sense in this country.

THERE 's excitement because Samuel Insull, who controls electric power in Chicago, contributed money to all senatorial candidates. Mr. Insull must protect his stockholders. Somebody will be elected to the senate, and everybody asks for money. If you refused one, he might be elected. Senators are powerful. Corporation gifts to candidates are really accident insurance.

POWERFUL is habit. In Japan no women were on the stage. Japanese men played female roles. Now Japanese women act and the public demands that they imitate, in every detail, the female impersonators. A Japanese girl, to be an actress, must learn how a man acts when he pretends to be a woman.

Here, if a man wants to buy a seat in the senate, he must learn how old senators used to act, when senators were statesmen, and elected because voters knew them by name, not because friends were willing to contribute a million dollars to help them on $15,000 salary in six years.

HENRY FORD says: "Mr. Coolidge can be re-elected" and thinks the third term idea" would not interfere.

Millions are convinced that President Coolidge will be re-elected. As to a third term, that is not involved. President Coolidge has been elected president of the United States once and George Washington's idea was that a president in power should not use that power to cause his re-election continuously. He felt that two elections were enough. Calvin Coolidge probably will have two elections. Thus far he has had only one.

A YOUNG man in Hanover married three times, said he was absent minded and forgot his marriages. Kind court, believing his story, put him in jail for one month. Perhaps the judge remembered how Hegel appeared before his class at Heidelberg

NATION COMBED FOR MELLETT SLAYER

HE'S WANTED AS "TRIGGER MAN"

This Bertillon photo of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, made while he was confined at the army prison at Atlanta, Ga., is being scattered all over the United States in the hope that police officials of other districts will help in apprehending him. McDermott has been named as the "trigger man" in the brutal murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, shot down in front of his garage by three men.

"MYSTERY MAN" IS UNDER GUARD

Joseph Roach, Famous Chicago Attorney, Who Has Put 60 Officials Behind Prison Bars, on Job.

CANTON, O., July 31.—Ora Slater, chief of the investigation into the murder of Don R. Mellet, announced today that the Boston police are holding a man believed to be Patrick E. McDermott of Cleveland, wanted in connection with the killing of the publisher.

Slater asked Boston authorities to check up on McDermott's Bertillion measurements and asked that a photograph of the suspect be rushed here.

The mystery witness being in jail near here who was hired with McDermott to murder and then backed out at the critical moment, will be asked to identify the picture of the Boston suspect.

Roach and Hexamer Confer.

While the greatest gallery of criminal catchers ever known to this city were gradually drawing tangible evidence out of what once appeared a bottomless mystery, the whole nation joined today in the hunt for McDermott.

Joseph Roach, famous Chicago attorney, whose "clean-up" activities have put no less than 60 officials behind prison bars, went into conference with Earl Hexamer, acting chief of police, early this morning. Roach late yesterday was named by Mayor S. M. Swarts as advisory counsel to Hexamer.

FRANK RISLER ACQUITTED OF M'COY KILLING

Raider Was Fatally Shot at Accused's Home.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 31—Frank Risler, 54-year-old tin smith, was a happy man today. A jury of eight women and four men late last night acquitted him of the murder of John C. McCoy, dry raider, and former Chester, W. Va. minister, whom Risler shot and killed on April 29 when the officer made a liquor raid on the Risler home.

The jury deliberated five hours. When it made its report, the courtroom was jammed. The crowd cheered and threw hats and coats in the air when the verdict was read.

The jury's report was signed by Foreman W. F. Graham of Toronto, Risler's home town. On the first two ballots the jury voted 11 to 1 for acquittal.

Risler testified during the five-day trial that he came home on the day of the shooting and found a strange, bearded man in the kitchen. He asked him what he was doing there and

MEXICO SEIZES ALL CATHOLIC EDIFICES; FEW CLASHES OCCUR

Houses of Worship Turned Over to City Committee.

BUSINESS HIT

Supporters of Church Retaliate With Economic Boycott.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—The great struggle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church is in full progress today.

The government appears to have the upper hand for the moment, having taken possession of the churches and turned them over to municipal committees, as well as having seized and sealed all church buildings not actually used for divine services.

Tomorrow May Be Crucial Day.

The supporters of the church have retaliated with an economic boycott which is already injuring business and threatening industrial paralysis.

There have been a few clashes, but no incidents of major importance as yet.

The government agents, police and troops are under instructions to quell any disorders.

Tomorrow may prove the crucial day, as the churches will be open only for services by laymen, while the supporters of the government will stage a great demonstration.

The situation has been aggravated by the action of the government in inviting Monsignor Crespi, in charge of the apostolic legation, to leave Mexico, without any announcement of the charges made against him. The priests who left their churches at midnight last night are in retirement, but it is understood that they are under the surveillance of government agents.

Several Reports of Riots.

The process of taking possession of the churches themselves was rapidly being effected throughout the nation by troops. All available soldiery in

LOS ANGELES, Cay., July 31.—The thirteenth annual picnic of the East Liverpool and Wellsville association of residents now in Los Angeles and vicinity was held July 24 at Sycamore Grove park. Two hundred former residents of the pottery and mill cities attended.

As no gathering was held in 1925 owing to the illness of Edward Hassey, one of the sponsors of the organization, some doubt had been expressed as to whether or not the annual picnic could be successfully revived. The attendance was sufficient to dispel all doubts of this kind, and to assure the continuation of the picnic as an annual event.

Luncheon was served at noon and dinner in the evening. At the midday gathering the usual business program was conducted. Officers were re-elected. They are:

GRANT DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF $75,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE, ADOPTION OF WHICH MEANS $40,000 GIFT

Pointing out that Newell, with an investment of $64.51 per enrolled pupil, has less property than any of the four school zones in Hancock county the Grant district board of education today addressed its final appeal to the electors to approve the $75,000 bond issue for a new elementary and high school to be submitted at the primary election next Tuesday.

The vote on the proposal follows an offer made by the Homer Laughlin China company and W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the company, of cash contributions totaling $30,000, as well as a site with a market value of approximately $10,000, by the North American Manufacturing company, all Newell interests, for a new school.

A statement issued by the district board shows that the steel town of Weirton, in the lower end of Hancock county, has an investment of $272.73 per pupil registered in the schools; Chester, $162.55, and New Cumberland, $150.64. In other words, the investment in Newell is less than one-fourth of that in Weirton and less than half of that in Chester and New Cumberland.

Comparison of Levies.

Other figures reveal that only $36.42 cents was spent for each pupil enrolled in the Grant district schools last year compared with $37.46 spent in Clay district; $42.96 in New Cumberland, $52.84 in Butler district and $73.74 in Chester.

But one other school zone in the county—Clay district in which no high school is maintained had a lower levy for school purposes during 1925-26 than Grant district. New Cumberland headed the districts with a $1.90 levy per $100 valuation. Butler district, with its big tax duplicate including the steel mills at Weirton, was second with a levy of $1.60. The Chester independent school district was third with $1.44 while Grand district was fourth with $1.21. The levy in Clay district, which includes Pughtown with elementary schools only, was 82 cents per $100 valuation. Considering the districts which maintain high schools, Grant district's school levy last year was the lowest in the county.

"At present Grant district is paying a considerable sum for temporary buildings, totally unfitted for the purpose, to provide for the overflow from its one school," the board's statement reads. "A new building would not only give the children proper school facilities, but the expense thus eliminated would aid materially in meeting the interest on the bonds."

Corporations and public utilities doing business in Grant district pay 50 per cent or more of the taxes levied and collected in the district and hence will pay the greater part of the cost in the construction of the new school if the bond issue is approved, it is pointed out.

If the bond issue is adopted, the district school board will improve facilities at the Grandview school, Lawrenceville, back of Chester, as well as erect a new building in Newell.

"It is to the interest of all voters of Grant district to support the bond issue from a purely selfish point of view, but it is of far greater importance to them to support it because of the better opportunity it gives the children of the district to secure an education," the statement concludes.

Should the bond issue be approved, the district school board will rush the necessary legislation in an effort to complete the new structure at the earliest possible date. The site selected is part of the old country club grounds, almost opposite the home of A. V. Bleininger, chemist at the Homer Laughlin China company's plant.

"The Blazed Trail"

Man must walk a path some other has made. Only a few can make new paths across the earth. The most of us are not trail blazers but trail followers.

Up in the far north land, he who travels there is wise who follows the Blazed Trail.

Are there no trails in the realm of moral and spiritual life that have been blazed and which ought to be followed?

Hear This Sermon Sunday Morning at 10:30.

Evening Sermon at 8, Subject:

"The Blazed Trail"

Man must walk a path some other has made. Only a few can make new paths across the earth. The most of us are not trail blazers but trail followers.

Up in the far north land, he who travels there is wise who follows the Blazed Trail.

Are there no trails in the realm of moral and spiritual life that have been blazed and which ought to be followed?

What becomes of the Earth when the Old World burns up?

Will all the people be burned when the Old World is destroyed?

Where will the New World be located?

Who will be the inhabitants of the New World?

What is the evidence that the New World is beginning?

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

"They were rehearsing, you see. Scene and costume work. They're pretty well along. We went right over to the theater. The stage was crowded with girls. Honest, I believe they're using a cool hundred of 'em. And enormous, built-up scenes. Flights of steps that look fifty feet high. Great arches. Silk drapes fifty feet long. The stage hands and electricians were working around, and I thought I counted the inevitable five chorus men. An enormous golden frame, a regular elaborate picture frame, but five times bigger than the biggest one up at the Metropolitan, was set up in the middle of the stage with some girls in bathrobes sitting near it on boxes. I began to suspect one-piece bathing suits in flesh color. But my mind was prepared. I didn't object. Why should I? The human body's all right. Considering Tennessee and prohibition and other quaint indications of progress, I'm not sure that the human body isn't about the best thing we've done thus far. . . . . Well, Hubert Green went around behind the boxes and sat in an orchestra seat. Czevek and Ralph whispered together, and then went out there and had a little talk with him. I just stood by and felt the girls eyeing me. After a little—Green seemed to be asking questions, and they all three looked up at me; Czevek looked up languidly, and Ralph made quick gestures then Czevek and Ralph came back on the stage. Ralph led me off to one side and, held my arm and looked down at me. 'Look here, Bee,' he said, 'you really want a job, I take it?'

"'Want it?' said I. 'I've got to get it!'

"'That's what I more or less thought. Now, listen: Cevek's a real artist, you know. And he's working out some wonderful living pictures. We show them in that frame. You've caught his fancy, you see.'

"'That's good,' said I.

"'But,'—he was looking pretty closely at me and smiling a little; Ralph's not a poor egg, you know, not by any means, and I couldn't help feeling that while he wanted to help me he felt queer about my being there, almost embarrassed—'but,' said he, 'I'm assuming you're not fussy, Bee."

"'Not a bit' says I, still about as bright as Dora's dumbest cakeeater. 'I'm game for anything, if it's a real job.' I was downright proud about it. I'd show Ralph whether I was a thoroughbred or not, I would! Oh, marvelous, I was! It makes me sick to think of it now. Makes me so mad I could—" The color flooded her face; but she merely lowered her lids and after a moment of savage poking at the salad with her fork, went doggedly on. She had no wish to shield herself. "As I say, I'd made up my mind to tights, and even to certain exposure of my fair skin—within rather obvious limits. I've seen shows enough. I figured I knew well enough what they did and what I might have to do, and was all set on it. And God knows I'm not prurient or furtive, no more in the theater than on the beach. Ralph said another thing that passed by me at the moment. He said: 'Of course you won't have to use your own name, Bee.' And still I dreamed on. But oh, Lou, little do our innocent and maligned intelligentsia of the Village realize what's going on uptown! Little do we know! We've had to fight this dirty censoring instance to get a little freedom of expression. We've been absorbed down here, on the defensive merely because of our ideas. Just ideas! We haven't had time or curiosly enough to look around at a few of the things they're not censoring. The things that are merely rotten with no ideas in them at all! Now, an idea is, at least, a clean thing. But those darn Puritans don't like clean things. And they won't think!"

This was the doctrinaire Bee, who loved to sputter out her theories, as she had been known to phrase it, to the cock-eyed world. It seemed to Lou that they were getting somewhat off the track. So she asked, "What happened?" in her blunt, office manner.

"Plenty. I'm telling you. Right now. After I let out that wise crack about being game for anything if only it was a real job, Ralph assured me that it was. If I looked good in the try-out, he said, and if Czevek found some plastic gift in me, they'd probably pay me seventy-five or a hundred a week. It was a peculiar case, he said. Czevek had been looking for a girl of just my height and size, and above all, for a girl with a touch of distinction. These chorus girls, he said, no use talking, just didn't have it.

"He introduced me to the assistant stage manager, who struck me as the hardest-boiled really young man I'd ever seen. Like a side-show barker at the circus, or a racetrack man. And his face had frozen that way. He nodded at me with one ear, pushed his hat back a little, said, 'Come this way, dearie,' and led me off down some iron stairs and put me into a little dressing room and just said: 'Take off your clothes. And hurry up about it.' That rather took my breath, especially as I didn't see anything at all in the room to put on. Nothing. But I'd said I was game, and I did it. Quick. I nearly went off into hysterics—in fact—I've not been far from hysterical laughter for a moment since, even now—at finding myself in that bare little room without a rag. I was pretty excited over the whole thing, the plunge I felt I was taking, and the real money and all. I supposed of course that egg would send the wardrobe mistress around. Somebody! When suddenly the door burst open, and it was the Egg himself."

Here is the Test

THESE five points are the test of efficiency, economy and convenience. Take these questions with you when buying a gas range.

1. Can you do all oven-cooking without preheating the oven?
2. Can you bake slowly and broil quickly at the same time?
3. Can you "stretch" the oven capacity for big bakings?
4. Does it have a gas-saving, bottomless oven?
5. Is the broiler above the oven to save stooping?

Answer: Yes, if it is a DIRECT ACTION Gas Range. Direct Action Gas Ranges meet all the real home tests. Come in and let us show you their exclusive advantages.

Death fo Senator Cummins

The nation was shocked today by news of the death of United States Senator Albert Baird Cummins, who was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart disease at his home in Des Moines, Iowa, yesterday afternoon and succumbed a few moments later.

His death marks the passing of a veteran political leader in Iowa, a state that frequently honored him with public office. After serving as governor, he was elected to the United States senate and took his seat in 1908. He was defeated in the recent Republican primaries by Smith Brookhart, a Progressive, who entered the race after he had lost his senate seat to Daniel F. Steck, a Democrat, in a bitter contest.

Senator Cummins was a self-made man. He started out to be a carpenter, but later took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar. He entered politics as a Prohibitionist but soon became a Republican.

In the upper house of congress, where his ability attracted the attention of his colleagues, he was recognized as a conservative. The confidence of his party in his leadership was attested by his election as president pro tem of the senate, a place of honor that he held for more than five years.

A Record Automobile Year

Automobile production is by no means an infallible index to trade conditions, for the makers are human and optimistic to boot. But the efforts of the producing companies are stimulated or diminished by anticipations based on thorough-going study of basic trends, and they may, therefore, be regarded as reflecting about the best opinion available.

In the first six months of 1926 the American motor industry set a new high record for output with 2,176,281 passenger cars and 272,903 trucks, and although June and July have shown the expected recession from peak production the shrinkage is less conspicuous than that of a year ago.

In recent years production from January to July has approximated 53 per cent of the 12 months total and that from July to December 47 per cent. If 1926 prove a normal year, this country will produce more than 4,600,000 cars and trucks before December 31, and present business conditions and crop prospects hold no threat of impending depression.

The industry as a whole was never in better shape financially. A record season seems assured. Its influence upon other industries which supply raw materials and parts, fuel and tires, will go far to assure many months of that reasonable prosperity which is the best kind of all.

Belgium's Plan

Without much ado King Albert of Belgium applied himself to his task as financial dictator with such promptness that an apparently sound plan is already in view. It involves turning state-owned railway lines over to a private company which has agreed to exchange stock in that enterprise for short-term government obligations which must be retired as an incident to deflation and currency reform. Thus a former government obligation becomes a private corporation's obligation. Its own property and equipment is collateral, but the interest on the railroad securities is guaranteed by the public treasury.

This looks to the early retirement of the floating debt and a return to the gold standard by January 1.

If sound thinking and prompt action of this sort would just spread to the rest of Europe, particularly France, very grave evils might be averted and the outlook would be greatly improved.

Debt Facts Wanted

A little more frankness on the part of the government might help to clear up some of the existing debt confusion, softening foreign anger against America and explaining to Americans some of the reasons for that anger.

As things stand, however, two explanations of the debt situation seem to have been offered—one for home and one for European consumption.

The home explanation pays little attention to the interest items, but asserts that in the main our debtors are paying us in full. The explanation offered abroad computes the interest at a high rate and suggests that there has been a high percentage of cancellation.

American citizens ought to be interested in knowing exactly what's what in this matter and the debtor nations have a right to know, too.

Drivers Are Good Walkers

Motorists make canny walkers, according to a statistician who has been looking into the subject. The driver, when outside of his car, knows what dangers to guard against; he knows which way to look when he steps across a street; he is calm at crossings and does not forget about the car making the right-hand turn; he watches the traffic officer at street intersections and uses his own intelligence at the same time.

Very few drivers are hurt when walking. The pedestrians who get in the way of automobiles, who jay walk, who disregard traffic signals and generally make nuisances of themselves—not to mention casualties—are the non-drivers.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 31.—One of the bland optimists who figure out statistics that do not mean a thing discovers the average New Yorker spends 28 hours a year riding on elevators. And if he walked up and down the same distances it would require five weeks and two days.

New York at one time was distinguished for elevator manners. It used to be men removed hats for a lady passenger and stood aside for her to enter first. The man who removes his hat today is likely to receive an avalanche of dirty looks and a sly kick on the shin.

And on entering an elevator it is every man for himself. Only a few women operators are left from service during the war. It is a man's job anyway. Uptown New York has apparently discovered some virtue in the West Indian same impertinence for they are in the majority as operators.

In well kept apartment houses the elevator operator is the ex-officio house detective. He sees all guests and is able to tell just where wild parties are being held and how late. The espionage is a part of his job.

In one de luxe apartment house on Park avenue the elevators are equipped with hidden electrical attachments that broadcast elevator conversations into the office of the manager. It has been found that tenants will more than likely voice complaints to elevator operators than to the management.

In the swank hotels operators must don silver buckled knee breeches after 6 o'clock in the evening. In former years their uniform was merely a braided cap, but today they are costumed like major domos. In one apartment house they wear powdered wigs. Soon we will be calling elevators "lifts."

Salaries are not large but with tips they are able to live comfortably. In the office buildings operators are seldom tipped save at Christmas time when they hang coin boxes, wreathed in holly on the wall and later divide the spoils.

Three is an automobile of expansive design often see on prominent thoroughfares that has a live brown monkey chained to the windshield. It swings about to perilous positions as the car bowls along and apparently enjoys the drive to the fullest. The car and monkey are owned by a cabaret hostess.

There is the tale of a prize fighter who had finished a gruelling 10-round bout at the Garden with multiple dents and protuberances. His manager escorted him from his dressing room to a nearby cafe and said to the waiter: "Bring him two Hamburger steaks, a hatful of fried potatoes and a bowl of coffee. He sure had a hard day at the office."

The sweatered and capped preliminary boys who while away the tedium for spectators until the big event are a jaunty crew. They like to appear tough and do so with little difficulty. Their talk, which comes out of the side of the mouth, is of the ring. "A smack on the button" is a knockout punch. A "rat" is a coward just as it is in the underworld, etc. Now and then a preliminary boy reaches a certain distinction, but most of them lack ambition beyond a good meal and a $20 stake for a fight.

Weather plays a part in New York crime waves. After a rainy spell it has been noted the first pages are often cluttered up with all sort of crimes.

And after a sunny clear day the police reports of crime are rather astonishingly meagre as a rule.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Big Game Increasing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Correcting the general belief that big game is becoming extinct in the United States, the United States Forest Service has just published its annual census of the big game of the national forests and finds that many varieties are on the increase. While this increase may not offset losses outside the forest reserves, the forest rangers believe that most varieties covered in their reports are pretty well holding their own everywhere. Many states in the west have set aside large game refuges, and on the whole there is evidence that our game supplies are holding up.

Will C. Barnes, assistant forester, who compiled the annual census from field reports, believes that it is a very fair estimate of the game in the national forests. Of course wild animals will not stand still and be counted, but the forest rangers covering the big timber and game country year after year come to know pretty accurately what amount of life there is in the woods.

The increase in numbers among certain animals is such as to require some means of using them, to prevent their dying of starvation, according to the Forest Service data. Thus the elk in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming, and the deer in the Kaibab Forest in Arizona, have multiplied until the government men feel it would be better to let hunters have a few more than to let them starve. Some of the game clubs and conservation associations want to let the increase go on, and to turn over all of the national forests to the game. Cattle and sheep are now permitted to graze in the forests under government authority, but wherever the feed for national game runs low, the Forest Service cuts off the permits for grazing domestic animals.

The Jackson Hole elk herd, for example, now numbers some 25,000 head, and can not find enough winter feed in the areas not under fence. The Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture has a ranch in the area and feeds hay to this herd, but several thousand acres more of hay must be raised if the herd is to be preserved at its present number. In some winters it has been cut nearly in half by cold and hunger, which destroys the calves especially.

Large Annual Increase.

The Forest Service suggests that enough feeding be arranged to keep the herd up to about present size, and that additional hunting be permitted to use the increase, which would be 4,000 to 5,000 elk a year. At present only about 1,000 are taken by hunters.

The Kaibab deer have continued to increase until there is not enough winter feed for them, and private cattle and sheep grazing is being steadily cut down in the area. Last year the government allowed some hunting and about 600 deer were killed. More hunting will be allowed this year. An interesting evidence of changing times in Arizona occurred in this forest when the Indians were given special permission to go into the preserve and hunt deer for the buckskin, which was once the sole source of clothing for the natives. The Indians did not bother to accept the permission. They are all wearing store clothes these days, and buckskin means little or nothing to them.

The wild game survey reveals that beavers are not becoming extinct, but are at least holding their own in the national forests. The estimate shows 114,000 beavers, and the rangers believe half as many more exist outside government areas. About two-fifths of those listed are in Colorado. Mountain goats and mountain sheep are also practically holding to even numbers. The current census shows 17,887 mountain goats in the national forests, an increase of about 600 over 1924, and 12,052 mountain sheep, a decrease of about 300. Especial care is being taken by the Forest Service to prevent grazing by domestic sheep in areas which would curtail the food supply of these wild species.

There are some 30,000 antelopes in the country, of which 7,500 are in the national forests, and the foresters believe this species is flourishing in the higher lands to which they have been driven as their native plans were settled by farmers and stockmen. The numbers in national forests increased almost 50 per cent last year. State game refuges have helped perpetuate the antelopes, which do not thrive in captivity.

Black and brown bears are also on the increase, largely because many states have decided that these comparatively harmless animals should be preserved rather than slaughtered as a menace. Game laws in most places now limit the killing of these bears to seasons when the fur is of best quality. There are some 46,000 of them in national forests.

Deer are steadily on the increase, being carefully protected by game laws. The report shows 605 000 in national forests where 550,000 were recorded a year earlier. This increase was recorded despite the necessary slaughter of about 22,000 deer suffering from foot and mouth disease. The deer are not all in the far west by any means. The White Mountain National

The nation was shocked today by news of the death of United States Senator Albert Baird Cummins, who was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart disease at his home in Des Moines, Iowa, yesterday afternoon and succumbed a few moments later.

His death marks the passing of a veteran political leader in Iowa, a state that frequently honored him with public office. After serving as governor, he was elected to the United States senate and took his seat in 1908. He was defeated in the recent Republican primaries by Smith Brookhart, a Progressive, who entered the race after he had lost his senate seat to Daniel F. Steck, a Democrat, in a bitter contest.

Senator Cummins was a self-made man. He started out to be a carpenter, but later took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar. He entered politics as a Prohibitionist but soon became a Republican.

In the upper house of congress, where his ability attracted the attention of his colleagues, he was recognized as a conservative. The confidence of his party in his leadership was attested by his election as president pro tem of the senate, a place of honor that he held for more than five years.

A Record Automobile Year

Automobile production is by no means an infallible index to trade conditions, for the makers are human and optimistic to boot. But the efforts of the producing companies are stimulated or diminished by anticipations based on thorough-going study of basic trends, and they may, therefore, be regarded as reflecting about the best opinion available.

In the first six months of 1926 the American motor industry set a new high record for output with 2,176,281 passenger cars and 272,903 trucks, and although June and July have shown the expected recession from peak production the shrinkage is less conspicuous than that of a year ago.

In recent years production from January to July has approximated 53 per cent of the 12 months total and that from July to December 47 per cent. If 1926 prove a normal year, this country will produce more than 4,600,000 cars and trucks before December 31, and present business conditions and crop prospects hold no threat of impending depression.

The industry as a whole was never in better shape financially. A record season seems assured. Its influence upon other industries which supply raw materials and parts, fuel and tires, will go far to assure many months of that reasonable prosperity which is the best kind of all.

Belgium's Plan

Without much ado King Albert of Belgium applied himself to his task as financial dictator with such promptness that an apparently sound plan is already in view. It involves turning state-owned railway lines over to a private company which has agreed to exchange stock in that enterprise for short-term government obligations which must be retired as an incident to deflation and currency reform. Thus a former government obligation becomes a private corporation's obligation. Its own property and equipment is collateral, but the interest on the railroad securities is guaranteed by the public treasury.

This looks to the early retirement of the floating debt and a return to the gold standard by January 1.

If sound thinking and prompt action of this sort would just spread to the rest of Europe, particularly France, very grave evils might be averted and the outlook would be greatly improved.

Debt Facts Wanted

A little more frankness on the part of the government might help to clear up some of the existing debt confusion, softening foreign anger against America and explaining to Americans some of the reasons for that anger.

As things stand, however, two explanations of the debt situation seem to have been offered—one for home and one for European consumption.

The home explanation pays little attention to the interest items, but asserts that in the main our debtors are paying us in full. The explanation offered abroad computes the interest at a high rate and suggests that there has been a high percentage of cancellation.

American citizens ought to be interested in knowing exactly what's what in this matter and the debtor nations have a right to know, too.

Drivers Are Good Walkers

Motorists make canny walkers, according to a statistician who has been looking into the subject. The driver, when outside of his car, knows what dangers to guard against; he knows which way to look when he steps across a street; he is calm at crossings and does not forget about the car making the right-hand turn; he watches the traffic officer at street intersections and uses his own intelligence at the same time.

Very few drivers are hurt when walking. The pedestrians who get in the way of automobiles, who jay walk, who disregard traffic signals and generally make nuisances of themselves—not to mention casualties—are the non-drivers.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 31.—One of the bland optimists who figure out statistics that do not mean a thing discovers the average New Yorker spends 28 hours a year riding on elevators. And if he walked up and down the same distances it would require five weeks and two days.

New York at one time was distinguished for elevator manners. It used to be men removed hats for a lady passenger and stood aside for her to enter first. The man who removes his hat today is likely to receive an avalanche of dirty looks and a sly kick on the shin.

And on entering an elevator it is every man for himself. Only a few women operators are left from service during the war. It is a man's job anyway. Uptown New York has apparently discovered some virtue in the West Indian same impertinence for they are in the majority as operators.

In well kept apartment houses the elevator operator is the ex-officio house detective. He sees all guests and is able to tell just where wild parties are being held and how late. The espionage is a part of his job.

In one de luxe apartment house on Park avenue the elevators are equipped with hidden electrical attachments that broadcast elevator conversations into the office of the manager. It has been found that tenants will more than likely voice complaints to elevator operators than to the management.

In the swank hotels operators must don silver buckled knee breeches after 6 o'clock in the evening. In former years their uniform was merely a braided cap, but today they are costumed like major domos. In one apartment house they wear powdered wigs. Soon we will be calling elevators "lifts."

Salaries are not large but with tips they are able to live comfortably. In the office buildings operators are seldom tipped save at Christmas time when they hang coin boxes, wreathed in holly on the wall and later divide the spoils.

Three is an automobile of expansive design often see on prominent thoroughfares that has a live brown monkey chained to the windshield. It swings about to perilous positions as the car bowls along and apparently enjoys the drive to the fullest. The car and monkey are owned by a cabaret hostess.

There is the tale of a prize fighter who had finished a gruelling 10-round bout at the Garden with multiple dents and protuberances. His manager escorted him from his dressing room to a nearby cafe and said to the waiter: "Bring him two Hamburger steaks, a hatful of fried potatoes and a bowl of coffee. He sure had a hard day at the office."

The sweatered and capped preliminary boys who while away the tedium for spectators until the big event are a jaunty crew. They like to appear tough and do so with little difficulty. Their talk, which comes out of the side of the mouth, is of the ring. "A smack on the button" is a knockout punch. A "rat" is a coward just as it is in the underworld, etc. Now and then a preliminary boy reaches a certain distinction, but most of them lack ambition beyond a good meal and a $20 stake for a fight.

Weather plays a part in New York crime waves. After a rainy spell it has been noted the first pages are often cluttered up with all sort of crimes.

And after a sunny clear day the police reports of crime are rather astonishingly meagre as a rule.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Big Game Increasing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—Correcting the general belief that big game is becoming extinct in the United States, the United States Forest Service has just published its annual census of the big game of the national forests and finds that many varieties are on the increase. While this increase may not offset losses outside the forest reserves, the forest rangers believe that most varieties covered in their reports are pretty well holding their own everywhere. Many states in the west have set aside large game refuges, and on the whole there is evidence that our game supplies are holding up.

Will C. Barnes, assistant forester, who compiled the annual census from field reports, believes that it is a very fair estimate of the game in the national forests. Of course wild animals will not stand still and be counted, but the forest rangers covering the big timber and game country year after year come to know pretty accurately what amount of life there is in the woods.

The increase in numbers among certain animals is such as to require some means of using them, to prevent their dying of starvation, according to the Forest Service data. Thus the elk in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming, and the deer in the Kaibab Forest in Arizona, have multiplied until the government men feel it would be better to let hunters have a few more than to let them starve. Some of the game clubs and conservation associations want to let the increase go on, and to turn over all of the national forests to the game. Cattle and sheep are now permitted to graze in the forests under government authority, but wherever the feed for national game runs low, the Forest Service cuts off the permits for grazing domestic animals.

Large Annual Increase.

The Jackson Hole elk herd, for example, now numbers some 25,000 head, and can not find enough winter feed in the areas not under fence. The Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture has a ranch in the area and feeds hay to this herd, but several thousand acres more of hay must be raised if the herd is to be preserved at its present number. In some winters it has been cut nearly in half by cold and hunger, which destroys the calves especially.

The Forest Service suggests that enough feeding be arranged to keep the herd up to about present size, and that additional hunting be permitted to use the increase, which would be 4,000 to 5,000 elk a year. At present only about 1,000 are taken by hunters.

The Kaibab deer have continued to increase until there is not enough winter feed for them, and private cattle and sheep grazing is being steadily cut down in the area. Last year the government allowed some hunting and about 600 deer were killed. More hunting will be allowed this year. An interesting evidence of changing times in Arizona occurred in this forest when the Indians were given special permission to go into the preserve and hunt deer for the buckskin, which was once the sole source of clothing for the natives. The Indians did not bother to accept the permission. They are all wearing store clothes these days, and buckskin means little or nothing to them.

The wild game survey reveals that beavers are not becoming extinct, but are at least holding their own in the national forests. The estimate shows 114,000 beavers, and the rangers believe half as many more exist outside government areas. About two-fifths of those listed are in Colorado. Mountain goats and mountain sheep are also practically holding to even numbers. The current census shows 17,887 mountain goats in the national forests, an increase of about 600 over 1924, and 12,052 mountain sheep, a decrease of about 300. Especial care is being taken by the Forest Service to prevent grazing by domestic sheep in areas which would curtail the food supply of these wild species.

There are some 30,000 antelopes in the country, of which 7,500 are in the national forests, and the foresters believe this species is flourishing in the higher lands to which they have been driven as their native plans were settled by farmers and stockmen. The numbers in national forests increased almost 50 per cent last year. State game refuges have helped perpetuate the antelopes, which do not thrive in captivity.

Black and brown bears are also on the increase, largely because many states have decided that these comparatively harmless animals should be preserved rather than slaughtered as a menace. Game laws in most places now limit the killing of these bears to seasons when the fur is of best quality. There are some 46,000 of them in national forests.

Deer are steadily on the increase, being carefully protected by game laws. The report shows 605,000 in national forests where 550,000 were recorded a year earlier. This increase was recorded despite the necessary slaughter of about 22,000 deer suffering from foot and mouth disease. The deer are not all in the far west by any means. The White Mountain National

Operator Will Reply "Thank You" Instead of Repeating When Subscriber Calls.

A new system of transmitting numbers over the telephone lines will become effective at the East Liverpool exchange of the Ohio Bell Telephone company next week, according to an announcement today by Frank Swaney, commercial manager.

Hereafter when a subscriber gives a number, the operator will not repeat the number, as has been customary, but will reply, "Thank you" and make the connection without further conversation. In case the operator is in doubt as to the number given, she will ask that it be repeated.

This practice, Swaney claims, has been adopted in Akron and some of the eastern cities and has been found satisfactory. It is in line with the Bell Telephone company's policy of doing everything possible to speed up service for subscribers and at the same time bring more courtesy into the operation.

The plan will be in effect throughout the Eastern division, which, in addition to Akron and East Liverpool, includes Canton, Alliance, Youngstown and Steubenville.

If You've Ever Borrowed
A Cup of Sugar—
WHEN you must borrow a cup of sugar, or the use of the telephone or a little gas for the car, why do you unhesitatingly appeal to your neighbor?
GROCER, telephone company, filling station would eventually supply your need. But to meet the immediate contingency you call across the back-yard fence. The sugar — and it's good sugar—is handed over. That's service, prompt, efficient, honest. But there's a certain something more to that little transaction—an indefinable something that can scarcely be described in the printed word or illustrated in a catalog. It's a feeling of mutual understanding and reciprocity, as of one who, having lived long among strangers, returns again to his own people; it's the same feeling that inspires this, and our similar messages to you.
AFTER all we're more than mere merchant and patron. We're neighbors. And if service, prompt, efficient, honest, is essential to true neighborliness—and we believe it is—that's the service that we sincerely offer and promise to you.

New System of Transmitting Phone Number Over Bell Lines

Operator Will Reply "Thank You" Instead of Repeating When Subscriber Calls.

A new system of transmitting numbers over the telephone lines will become effective at the East Liverpool exchange of the Ohio Bell Telephone company next week, according to an announcement today by Frank Swaney, commercial manager.

Hereafter when a subscriber gives a number, the operator will not repeat the number, as has been customary, but will reply, "Thank you" and make the connection without further conversation. In case the operator is in doubt as to the number given, she will ask that it be repeated.

This practice, Swaney claims, has been adopted in Akron and some of the eastern cities and has been found satisfactory. It is in line with the Bell Telephone company's policy of doing everything possible to speed up service for subscribers and at the same time bring more courtesy into the operation.

The plan will be in effect throughout the Eastern division, which, in addition to Akron and East Liverpool, includes Canton, Alliance, Youngstown and Steubenville.

CUMMINS RITES WILL BE HELD AT DES MOINES

Smith W. Brookhart Pays Tribute to Colleague's Memory.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—Members of the family of the late United States Senator Albert B. Cummins, who succumbed to a sudden attack of angina pectoris late yesterday afternoon, made tentative announcement today that funeral services would be held Monday.

Lieutenant-Governor Clem F. Kimball from his home in Council Bluffs, in the absence of Governor John Hammill in the west, today had set in motion plans for a state funeral contingent upon the aproval of the Cummins family.

While it was known that Senator Cummins had been standing the heat badly, his death was a profound shock to his family and friends.

With his two sisters, Misses Anna and Margaret Cummins, who have lived with him since the death of Mrs. Cummins several years ago, the senator returned from Washington at the close of the congressional session and established a summer residence here.

Working on Autobiography.

He had been hard at work on his autobiography with great zest, on Wednesday, and apparently was feeling better than usual. He attended a small dinner party that evening and retired in good spirits, but at midnight the household was roused and physicians were sent for.

The attack was diagnosed as angina pectoris. The senator obtained relief and spent a comparatively quiet night but as the day advanced yesterday he did not regain strength and peacefully passed away at 4:15. With him throughout the day were Mrs. Hollis Rawson, his only child, her husband and the Misses Cummins.

The strain of the campaign last spring, in which he was defeated for renomination by Smith W. Brookhart, combined with his arduous work in the senate had told greatly on him, it was said. Close friends said today they believed the aged senator's defeat for renomination was welcomed by him as a chance to rest and embark upon the writings of his political experiences, an ambition which he had long cherished.

Messages of Sympathy.

Today the news of his death had brought a flood of messages of sympathy to the family from all parts of the country. A telegram was received by Mrs. Rawson from President and Mrs. Coolidge, which was not made public.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, whose political career in Iowa started as an ardent champion of Senator Cummins, when he was regarded as a "rank insurgent," was one of the first to make a statement from his home in Washington, Iowa.

"The greater part of my political life has been spent side by side with Senator Cummins," he said. "Later disagreements can never wipe out the memory of those days. For fifteen years his picture was hung in my office beside that of Abraham Lincoln, where it hangs today."

the "jungle" is expected to have its inception today.

Arrests Expected

Arrests in the case are expected momentarily.

The "mystery man" who identified McDermott as the man with whom he was hired to murder the fearless publisher, is being heavily guarded in a jail near here.

He fears that the underworld, now the cornered quarry of the law, will strike suddenly for his life.

"The mystery man" was hired, he claims, with McDermott, to kill Mellett on the night of July 12. In the eyes of the plotters he turned "yellow" and refused to participate in the crime. The killing then was delayed until July 16.

Deny Report of Arrest.

BOSTON, July 31.—A complete checkup of Boston police stations this afternoon by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley failed to disclose the arrest of any man answering the description of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher.

Reports had been received from Ohio to the effect that a man thought to be McDermott was picked up here.

Connors Quits Case.

With these words, Detective Peter Connors, working on Pittsburgh angles of the case, withdrew today from active participation in trying to learn the identity of the slayer of Don R. Mellett, young Canton publisher killed in the midst of a campaign to stamp out vice in the Ohio city.

Connors waited all day yesterday for Ora Slater, head of the investigators, to arrive here with an unnamed witness to identify George Psialias, in jail here, against whom the Pittsburgh detective asserted he had unearthed sufficient evidence to warrant accessory charges and a grand jury probe.

Warrant for "George the Greek"

PITTSBURGH, July 31—Local authorities today received a warrant for the arrest of George Psialias, alias "George the Greek" and a copy of an indictment from Boston, in connection with a criminal assault on two men there in 1920.

The papers, sent by Michael Crowley, superintendent of Boston police to Peter P. Walsh, Pittsburgh police superintendent, allege that a man known there as George Greek, answering to the description of Psialias given much publicity in connection with the Mellett murder mystery, fled from Boston six years ago after being indicted in connection with an attack on two men there.

George Greek was released after indictment on his own recognizance in Boston after the alleged attack on Andrew Vingel and Harry Dodis, and was never recaptured.

Psialias will be formally held for Boston police, Walsh said.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31.—After an early advance in the railroad stocks today, the professionals in the stock market again concentrated their activity on the motor shares. The speculative battle was renewed in Hudson Motors, Chrysler, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland and other stocks which led the violent up turn in the market just prior to the smash in February and March.

The shorts in Hudson Motors received further punishment at the hands of the bulls when the price was advanced aggressively to 71¾ in the first period, representing a gain of about 10 points from yesterday's low. Chrysler and Studebaker were more orderly in their new advances, which added about 1½ points to their market values as compared with Friday's close. The market was overwhelmingly professional, with increasing evidence of the reckless bidding up of stock prices which precipitated the break earlier in the year.

College Men Seek Subscriptions to Pictorial Review

Five students invaded East Liverpool today, soliciting subscriptions for the Pictorial Review as a means of earning their way through college.

The young men, who are working through the Moyer Brothers store, local agents for Pictorial Patterns, will make a house-to-house canvass. They carry credentials from the publishers.

The group includes Edward H. Fox, Albert Karo and "Lo" Caplan, students at Akron university; William Rothschild, of Ohio State University, Columbus, and Jack Schoolnic of West Virginia university, Morgantown. They are making their headquarters at the Y. M. C. A.

Mayor Ralph Benedum has issued a permit to the solicitors. The Pictorial Review will pay the college tuition fee direct to the college after the workers have matriculated.

OHIOAN KIDNAPED FROM MOTOR CAR

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Police today were baffled by the alleged kidnaping of Edward Gordon, 22, from an automobile in which he and Miss Florence Kane, 19, were sitting in front of a restaurant shortly after midnight.

Miss Kane called police, saying five men drove up in another auto, overpowered Gordon, forced him into their car and sped away. She was not molested, she said.

Mexico Seizes

Mexico were on the march or actively doing guard duty.

One hundred infantry men have garrisoned the chamber of deputies to prevent pistol battles between rival groups of deputies. This action was taken at the request of the presiding officer of the chamber who pointed out that a senator, a judge, and a deputy have already been shot to death in quarrels growing out of the church government issue.

Several reports of riots which resulted in bloodshed indicated that the seizure of the churches by the government was meeting with resistance.

Movie Theatres Report Loss.

The rank and file in the anti-government army have already begun the economic boycott, which their leaders announced was not to begin until August 1. Theatres, dance halls and other places of amusement reported a considerable decline in receipts. An average of 60 per cent loss was reported in movie theatres throughout Mexico during the week and exhibitors predicted that the loss would exceed 90 per cent when the boycott was formally inaugurated.

The bank of Mexico as well as other financial institutions report that unusually heavy withdrawals of cash have begun. The National bank has stopped payment of checks in anticipation of a run.

Movie theatre owners will meet Monday to consider action. It is understood that many are in favor of closing the theatres, but fear to do so lest they be punished by the government.

Laborers in Charge of Buildings.

Orders for the seizure of the churches were issued by Attorney General Romeo Ortega. Ortega is understood to have been actuated by a desire to forestall the churches being delivered to lay committees of eight as announced by the retiring Catholic clergy.

Department of justice agents were instructed to give warning that failure to obey the orders to yield the church property would be punished severely. Municipalities have been invited to designate committees of ten to administer the churches during the boycott.

In Mexico City the Federation of Labor will take possession of 35 of the city's principal churches. Each church will be cared for by a foreman and five laborers. The foreman will receive ten pesos daily, the laborers four each, for keeping the building furnishings in good repair and protecting the art treasures from vandals and thieves.

Schismatic Catholics have requested the immediate possession of six of the largest churches in the capital.

Nine Persons Shot.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—Nine persons, mostly women, were shot and wounded early today when they resisted the attempt of federal troops to oust them from San Rafeal cathedral, one of the smaller churches in Mexico City.

The occupants of the church were first informed quietly they would have to go. When they refused firemen were summoned who drenched the worshippers with water from the fire hose. The reply of the crowd both within and without the church was to hurl stones and other missles at the invaders.

The soldiers then intervened, and returning bullets with stones, succeeded in dispersing the crowd.

General Romeo Ortega, it was reported, was struck in the head by a bottle wielded by a woman. The report was not confirmed.

Soldiers also had to be called to clear the neighboring aristocratic church of the Sacred Family, located in the Colonia Roma where many Americans reside. No casualties were reported there, however.

ELLA CINDERS AT AMERICAN

Colleen Moore Stars in Comic Strip Movie.

"Ella Cinders," the first feature length picturization of a newspaper comic strip, is on its way, with Colleen Moore starring as the extraordinary heroine of the story.

This offering, released by First National, begins an engagement at the American theatre next Monday, with the guarantee that there will be much laughter with and at the heroine and not a little audible commiseration when Fate deals unkindly with her.

In "Ella Cinders," the cartoon characters created by William Conselman and Charles Plumb, well known to many thousands of newspaper readers, are transplanted to the screen and given a dramatic motivation which is promised to result in a tensely human tale of struggle and aspiration, with humor to leaven the tragedies of the youthful heart.

The successfully sustained high standard of Miss Moore's productions and her work in them have made her name synonymous with an evening of enjoyment, and the producers promise "Ella Cinders" as among her very best efforts.

A modern Prince Charming, who toughens himself between seasons as the village iceman for a strenuous football schedule in the earlier sequences and later turns out to be a scion of wealth and breeding, is Lloyd Hughes in the production.

OFFER REWARD IN KILLING OF CROOK NEMESIS

BLAME GUNMEN

Bert Donaldson, Reformed Convict, Victim of Underworld.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—With a $1,000 reward posted by his employer, Solicitor General John Boykin, and all available city detectives working on the case, little light had been shed early today on the mystery murder of Bert Donaldson, chief investigator for the solicitor general, here today, 12 hours after his body was found riddled with bullets in a hotel room.

Donaldson, who had served a prison sentence and reformed, was known as the nemesis of the Atlanta underworld. Singlehanded, he uncovered the operations of a famous million dollar ring of confidence men, and tracked members of the gang all over the country, to send them to the penitentiary for long terms. He was credited with other brilliant detective exploits.

The detectives were working on the theory that Donaldson may have been slain by Chicago gunmen, as a result of a recent trip he made to Chicago on the trail of a gunman known as Jack Wilson, under indictment for the murder of a grocer during a holdup.

Lured to Hotel Room.

Donaldson was lured to a room at the fashionable Georgian Terrace hotel Thursday night by a mysterious telephone call. There he entered a room occupied by a scar-faced man registered as "W. B. Sands, Macon, Ga." Two other men were in the room with Donaldson and "Sands," an elevator boy reported. The slayers sat in a closet in the room and fired two charges of buckshot into the detective's head as he passed the closed door. The slayers then escaped by going down the elevator, without arousing suspicion. The body was not found until 24 hours later, when a maid entered the room.

Donaldson for years was known as one of the smoothest safe crackers in the business, operating in New York, Cleveland, and other large eastern cities. On one occasion he was condemned to die for the murder of a policeman who surprised three men cracking a safe, and was shot. Shortly before he was scheduled to go to the electric chair, he was granted a new trial and eventually won his freedom.

Two New State Highways Established In County

New Routes Determined for Roads From East Liverpool and Lisbon and Negley to East Palestine.

Two new state highways have been established in Columbiana county by the state highway department, according to official notice received today by L. H. Johnson, clerk to the board of county commissioners.

A new route has been determined for the East Liverpool-East Palestine road through St. Clair township, and also one for the Lisbon-Negley-East Palestine road. The former highway will open the richest fruit belt in the county, while the latter route will open through traffic from the Pennsylvania line west to Lisbon to connect with the Lincoln highway.

A hearing on these roads was held at the court house at Lisbon on Nov. 13, last, which was in charge of W. C. Fawcett, of Martins Ferry, then division highway engineer. Fawcett's report was filed with the state highway department some months ago, but no decision was ever handed down.

H. E. Foreman, secretary to G. F. Schlesinger, director of the department of highways and public works, has advised the county commissioners of the entry just made upon the journal of the director of the highways as follows:

"The report of Mr. W. C. Fawcett with reference to hearing held by him on Nov. 13, 1925, at Lisbon, Ohio, for change in location of a portion of ICH 383 and establishment of new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, was presented, said inter-county highway being described as follows:

"Northerly from the north corporation line of East Liverpool through Calcutta, Fredericktown (St. Clair), Achor, Negley, to East Palestine; following the old location of ICH 502 thru Liverpool township, Sec. 34; St. Clair township, Sec. 27, 22, 21 to Calcutta; thence over a new route northeasterly thru Sec. 22, 15, 14, 11, 2, to Fredericktown (St. Clair); thence northwesterly thru Sec. 2; Middleton township, Secs., 35, 34, 27, 22, 23, 14 (Achor), 11 to Negley, joining ICH 383 as recommended below to East Palestine.

"Said change in location being described as:

"'Easterly from the east corporation line of Lisbon through Elkton, Signal, Rogers, East Palestine, Pennsylvania State line; Center township, Sec. 13, Elkrun township, Secs. 18, 19, 20, 21, (Elkton) northeasterly thru Secs. 21, 16, 9, 10, 11 (Signal) 2, 1, 12; Middleton township, Sec. 7 (Rogers) 8, 5, 4, 9, 31, 10, 11, (Negley) thence northerly thru Secs. 11, 2; Unity township, Secs. 35, 26 to East Palestine; thence easterly from the east corporation line of East Palestine over the existing Sec. A of ICH 383 to the Pennsylvania line.'

Director Schlesinger granted the change in location of a portion of ICH 383, Columbiana county, also established a new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, to be known as ICH 562, East Liverpool-East Palestine road, described above."

the intruder replied: "None of your d—— business."

"I'll make it my business," Risler testified he told the man who then drew a gun and leveled it at Risler. The latter drew his own weapon and fired first, killing the stranger who was McCoy a dry agent.

The state sought to show that Risler had boasted before he would shoot any dry agents who entered his home.

J. D. Bragg, Farm Agent, Circleville, Succeeds Hogsett

COLUMBUS, July 31.—J. D. Bragg, Circleville, O., county farm bureau agent of the state welfare department, succeeds John Hogsett, who resigned a week ago. The appointment was announced today by Welfare Director John E. Harper.

Hogsett was one of the three welfare department officials charged by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe with conspiring to defraud the state by splitting commissions in the purchase of a site for a northern Ohio state institution for the feeble-minded.

ACCUSED WIDOW IN HALL-MILLS CASE RELEASED

BOND OF $15,000

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31.—Through a clever ruse, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, released last night under $15,000 bond from charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, early today succeeded in dispersing a throng of curious folk that gathered around her palatial home here.

An automobile loaded with baggage was first taken from the house to the railroad station. It was shipped to Ocean Grove, N. J. Later a heavily veiled woman emerged from the house.

A shout went up from the waiting throng. "There's Mrs. Hall," one man cried. The woman entered an automobile and was driven to the railroad station. The crowd followed. The woman boarded a train for New York and it was not until later that it was learned that she was Mrs. David Murray, a friend of Mrs. Hall.

After her friend's departure Mrs. Hall made preparations to leave later today for Ocean Grove for a prolonged rest to recover from the shock of her midnight arrest. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carpender, cousins, leased a cottage there for the summer sometime ago.

Indications today were that Mrs. Hall will not have to face court action before September at the earliest. State Senator Alexander Simpson, appointed special prosecutor in the case by Gov. Moore, indicated that he would not ask that the April grand jury be summoned in special session. The regular grand jury of Somerset county is not due to meet until the third Tuesday in September.

CUMMINS RITES WILL BE HELD AT DES MOINES

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 31.—Members of the family of the late United States Senator Albert B. Cummins, who succumbed to a sudden attack of angina pectoris late yesterday afternoon, made tentative announcement today that funeral services would be held Monday.

Lieutenant-Governor Clem F. Kimball from his home in Council Bluffs, in the absence of Governor John Hammill in the west, today had set in motion plans for a state funeral contingent upon the aproval of the Cummins family.

While it was known that Senator Cummins had been standing the heat badly, his death was a profound shock to his family and friends.

With his two sisters, Misses Anna and Margaret Cummins, who have lived with him since the death of Mrs. Cummins several years ago, the senator returned from Washington at the close of the congressional session and established a summer residence here.

Working on Autobiography.

He had been hard at work on his autobiography with great zest, on Wednesday, and apparently was feeling better than usual. He attended a small dinner party that evening and retired in good spirits, but at midnight the household was roused and physicians were sent for.

The attack was diagnosed as angina pectoris. The senator obtained relief and spent a comparatively quiet night but as the day advanced yesterday he did not regain strength and peacefully passed away at 4:15. With him throughout the day were Mrs. Hollis Rawson, his only child, her husband and the Misses Cummins.

The strain of the campaign last spring, in which he was defeated for renomination by Smith W. Brookhart, combined with his arduous work in the senate had told greatly on him, it was said. Close friends said today they believed the aged senator's defeat for renomination was welcomed by him as a chance to rest and embark upon the writings of his political experiences, an ambition which he had long cherished.

Messages of Sympathy.

Today the news of his death had brought a flood of messages of sympathy to the family from all parts of the country. A telegram was received by Mrs. Rawson from President and Mrs. Coolidge, which was not made public.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, whose political career in Iowa started as an ardent champion of Senator Cummins, when he was regarded as a "rank insurgent," was one of the first to make a statement from his home in Washington, Iowa.

"The greater part of my political life has been spent side by side with Senator Cummins," he said. "Later disagreements can never wipe out the memory of those days. For fifteen years his picture was hung in my office beside that of Abraham Lincoln, where it hangs today."

the "jungle" is expected to have its inception today.

Arrests Expected

Arrests in the case are expected momentarily.

The "mystery man" who identified McDermott as the man with whom he was hired to murder the fearless publisher, is being heavily guarded in a jail near here.

He fears that the underworld, now the cornered quarry of the law, will strike suddenly for his life.

"The mystery man" was hired, he claims, with McDermott, to kill Mellett on the night of July 12. In the eyes of the plotters he turned "yellow" and refused to participate in the crime. The killing then was delayed until July 16.

Deny Report of Arrest.

BOSTON, July 31.—A complete checkup of Boston police stations this afternoon by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley failed to disclose the arrest of any man answering the description of Patrick E. McDermott, of Cleveland, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher.

Reports had been received from Ohio to the effect that a man thought to be McDermott was picked up here.

Connors Quits Case.

With these words, Detective Peter Connors, working on Pittsburgh angles of the case, withdrew today from active participation in trying to learn the identity of the slayer of Don R. Mellett, young Canton publisher killed in the midst of a campaign to stamp out vice in the Ohio city.

Connors waited all day yesterday for Ora Slater, head of the investigators, to arrive here with an unnamed witness to identify George Psialias, in jail here, against whom the Pittsburgh detective asserted he had unearthed sufficient evidence to warrant accessory charges and a grand jury probe.

Warrant for "George the Greek"

PITTSBURGH, July 31—Local authorities today received a warrant for the arrest of George Psialias, alias "George the Greek" and a copy of an indictment from Boston, in connection with a criminal assault on two men there in 1920.

The papers, sent by Michael Crowley, superintendent of Boston police to Peter P. Walsh, Pittsburgh police superintendent, allege that a man known there as George Greek, answering to the description of Psialias given much publicity in connection with the Mellett murder mystery, fled from Boston six years ago after being indicted in connection with an attack on two men there.

George Greek was released after indictment on his own recognizance in Boston after the alleged attack on Andrew Vingel and Harry Dodis, and was never recaptured.

Psialias will be formally held for Boston police, Walsh said.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31.—After an early advance in the railroad stocks today, the professionals in the stock market again concentrated their activity on the motor shares. The speculative battle was renewed in Hudson Motors, Chrysler, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys Overland and other stocks which led the violent up turn in the market just prior to the smash in February and March.

The shorts in Hudson Motors received further punishment at the hands of the bulls when the price was advanced aggressively to 71¾ in the first period, representing a gain of about 10 points from yesterday's low. Chrysler and Studebaker were more orderly in their new advances, which added about 1½ points to their market values as compared with Friday's close. The market was overwhelmingly professional, with increasing evidence of the reckless bidding up of stock prices which precipitated the break earlier in the year.

College Men Seek Subscriptions to Pictorial Review

Five students invaded East Liverpool today, soliciting subscriptions for the Pictorial Review as a means of earning their way through college.

The young men, who are working through the Moyer Brothers store, local agents for Pictorial Patterns, will make a house-to-house canvass. They carry credentials from the publishers.

The group includes Edward H. Fox, Albert Karo and "Lo" Caplan, students at Akron university; William Rothschild, of Ohio State University, Columbus, and Jack Schoolnic of West Virginia university, Morgantown. They are making their headquarters at the Y. M. C. A.

Mayor Ralph Benedum has issued a permit to the solicitors. The Pictorial Review will pay the college tuition fee direct to the college after the workers have matriculated.

OHIOAN KIDNAPED FROM MOTOR CAR

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Police today were baffled by the alleged kidnaping of Edward Gordon, 22, from an automobile in which he and Miss Florence Kane, 19, were sitting in front of a restaurant shortly after midnight.

Miss Kane called police, saying five men drove up in another auto, overpowered Gordon, forced him into their car and sped away. She was not molested, she said.

Mexico Seizes

Mexico were on the march or actively doing guard duty.

One hundred infantry men have garrisoned the chamber of deputies to prevent pistol battles between rival groups of deputies. This action was taken at the request of the presiding officer of the chamber who pointed out that a senator, a judge, and a deputy have already been shot to death in quarrels growing out of the church government issue.

Several reports of riots which resulted in bloodshed indicated that the seizure of the churches by the government was meeting with resistance.

Movie Theatres Report Loss.

The rank and file in the anti-government army have already begun the economic boycott, which their leaders announced was not to begin until August 1. Theatres, dance halls and other places of amusement reported a considerable decline in receipts. An average of 60 per cent loss was reported in movie theatres throughout Mexico during the week and exhibitors predicted that the loss would exceed 90 per cent when the boycott was formally inaugurated.

The bank of Mexico as well as other financial institutions report that unusually heavy withdrawals of cash have begun. The National bank has stopped payment of checks in anticipation of a run.

Movie theatre owners will meet Monday to consider action. It is understood that many are in favor of closing the theatres, but fear to do so lest they be punished by the government.

Laborers in Charge of Buildings.

Orders for the seizure of the churches were issued by Attorney General Romeo Ortega. Ortega is understood to have been actuated by a desire to forestall the churches being delivered to lay committees of eight as announced by the retiring Catholic clergy.

Department of justice agents were instructed to give warning that failure to obey the orders to yield the church property would be punished severely. Municipalities have been invited to designate committees of ten to administer the churches during the boycott.

In Mexico City the Federation of Labor will take possession of 35 of the city's principal churches. Each church will be cared for by a foreman and five laborers. The foreman will receive ten pesos daily, the laborers four each, for keeping the building furnishings in good repair and protecting the art treasures from vandals and thieves.

Schismatic Catholics have requested the immediate possession of six of the largest churches in the capital.

Nine Persons Shot.

MEXICO CITY, July 31.—Nine persons, mostly women, were shot and wounded early today when they resisted the attempt of federal troops to oust them from San Rafeal cathedral, one of the smaller churches in Mexico City.

The occupants of the church were first informed quietly they would have to go. When they refused firemen were summoned who drenched the worshippers with water from the fire hose. The reply of the crowd both within and without the church was to hurl stones and other missles at the invaders.

The soldiers then intervened, and returning bullets with stones, succeeded in dispersing the crowd.

General Romeo Ortega, it was reported, was struck in the head by a bottle wielded by a woman. The report was not confirmed.

Soldiers also had to be called to clear the neighboring aristocratic church of the Sacred Family, located in the Colonia Roma where many Americans reside. No casualties were reported there, however.

ELLA CINDERS AT AMERICAN

Colleen Moore Stars in Comic Strip Movie.

"Ella Cinders," the first feature length picturization of a newspaper comic strip, is on its way, with Colleen Moore starring as the extraordinary heroine of the story.

This offering, released by First National, begins an engagement at the American theatre next Monday, with the guarantee that there will be much laughter with and at the heroine and not a little audible commiseration when Fate deals unkindly with her.

In "Ella Cinders," the cartoon characters created by William Conselman and Charles Plumb, well known to many thousands of newspaper readers, are transplanted to the screen and given a dramatic motivation which is promised to result in a tensely human tale of struggle and aspiration, with humor to leaven the tragedies of the youthful heart.

The successfully sustained high standard of Miss Moore's productions and her work in them have made her name synonymous with an evening of enjoyment, and the producers promise "Ella Cinders" as among her very best efforts.

A modern Prince Charming, who toughens himself between seasons as the village iceman for a strenuous football schedule in the earlier sequences and later turns out to be a scion of wealth and breeding, is Lloyd Hughes in the production.

OFFER REWARD IN KILLING OF CROOK NEMESIS

Georgia Solicitor General's Aide is Shot to Death.

BLAME GUNMEN

Bert Donaldson, Reformed Convict, Victim of Underworld.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—With a $1,000 reward posted by his employer, Solicitor General John Boykin, and all available city detectives working on the case, little light had been shed early today on the mystery murder of Bert Donaldson, chief investigator for the solicitor general, here today, 12 hours after his body was found riddled with bullets in a hotel room.

Donaldson, who had served a prison sentence and reformed, was known as the nemesis of the Atlanta underworld. Singlehanded, he uncovered the operations of a famous million dollar ring of confidence men, and tracked members of the gang all over the country, to send them to the penitentiary for long terms. He was credited with other brilliant detective exploits.

The detectives were working on the theory that Donaldson may have been slain by Chicago gunmen, as a result of a recent trip he made to Chicago on the trail of a gunman known as Jack Wilson, under indictment for the murder of a grocer during a holdup.

Lured to Hotel Room.

Donaldson was lured to a room at the fashionable Georgian Terrace hotel Thursday night by a mysterious telephone call. There he entered a room occupied by a scar-faced man registered as "W. B. Sands, Macon, Ga." Two other men were in the room with Donaldson and "Sands," an elevator boy reported. The slayers sat in a closet in the room and fired two charges of buckshot into the detective's head as he passed the closed door. The slayers then escaped by going down the elevator, without arousing suspicion. The body was not found until 24 hours later, when a maid entered the room.

Donaldson for years was known as one of the smoothest safe crackers in the business, operating in New York, Cleveland, and other large eastern cities. On one occasion he was condemned to die for the murder of a policeman who surprised three men cracking a safe, and was shot. Shortly before he was scheduled to go to the electric chair, he was granted a new trial and eventually won his freedom.

Two New State Highways Established In County

New Routes Determined for Roads From East Liverpool and Lisbon and Negley to East Palestine.

Two new state highways have been established in Columbiana county by the state highway department, according to official notice received today by L. H. Johnson, clerk to the board of county commissioners.

A new route has been determined for the East Liverpool-East Palestine road through St. Clair township, and also one for the Lisbon-Negley-East Palestine road. The former highway will open the richest fruit belt in the county, while the latter route will open through traffic from the Pennsylvania line west to Lisbon to connect with the Lincoln highway.

A hearing on these roads was held at the court house at Lisbon on Nov. 13, last, which was in charge of W. C. Fawcett, of Martins Ferry, then division highway engineer. Fawcett's report was filed with the state highway department some months ago, but no decision was ever handed down.

H. E. Foreman, secretary to G. F. Schlesinger, director of the department of highways and public works, has advised the county commissioners of the entry just made upon the journal of the director of the highways as follows:

"The report of Mr. W. C. Fawcett with reference to hearing held by him on Nov. 13, 1925, at Lisbon, Ohio, for change in location of a portion of ICH 383 and establishment of new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, was presented, said inter-county highway being described as follows:

"Northerly from the north corporation line of East Liverpool through Calcutta, Fredericktown (St. Clair), Achor, Negley, to East Palestine; following the old location of ICH 502 thru Liverpool township, Sec. 34; St. Clair township, Sec. 27, 22, 21 to Calcutta; thence over a new route northeasterly thru Sec. 22, 15, 14, 11, 2, to Fredericktown (St. Clair); thence northwesterly thru Sec. 2; Middleton township, Secs., 35, 34, 27, 22, 23, 14 (Achor), 11 to Negley, joining ICH 383 as recommended below to East Palestine.

"Said change in location being described as:

"'Easterly from the east corporation line of Lisbon through Elkton, Signal, Rogers, East Palestine, Pennsylvania State line; Center township, Sec. 13, Elkrun township, Secs. 18, 19, 20, 21, (Elkton) northeasterly thru Secs. 21, 16, 9, 10, 11 (Signal) 2, 1, 12; Middleton township, Sec. 7 (Rogers) 8, 5, 4, 9, 31, 10, 11, (Negley) thence northerly thru Secs. 11, 2; Unity township, Secs. 35, 26 to East Palestine; thence easterly from the east corporation line of East Palestine over the existing Sec. A of ICH 383 to the Pennsylvania line.'

Director Schlesinger granted the change in location of a portion of ICH 383, Columbiana county, also established a new intercounty highway in Columbiana county, to be known as ICH 562, East Liverpool-East Palestine road, described above."

Frank Risler

the intruder replied: "None of your d—— business."

"I'll make it my business," Risler testified he told the man who then drew a gun and leveled it at Risler. The latter drew his own weapon and fired first, killing the stranger who was McCoy a dry agent.

The state sought to show that Risler had boasted before he would shoot any dry agents who entered his home.

ACCUSED WIDOW IN HALL-MILLS CASE RELEASED

BOND OF $15,000

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 31.—Through a clever ruse, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, released last night under $15,000 bond from charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, early today succeeded in dispersing a throng of curious folk that gathered around her palatial home here.

An automobile loaded with baggage was first taken from the house to the railroad station. It was shipped to Ocean Grove, N. J. Later a heavily veiled woman emerged from the house.

A shout went up from the waiting throng. "There's Mrs. Hall," one man cried. The woman entered an automobile and was driven to the railroad station. The crowd followed. The woman boarded a train for New York and it was not until later that it was learned that she was Mrs. David Murray, a friend of Mrs. Hall.

After her friend's departure Mrs. Hall made preparations to leave later today for Ocean Grove for a prolonged rest to recover from the shock of her midnight arrest. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carpender, cousins, leased a cottage there for the summer sometime ago.

Indications today were that Mrs. Hall will not have to face court action before September at the earliest. State Senator Alexander Simpson, appointed special prosecutor in the case by Gov. Moore, indicated that he would not ask that the April grand jury be summoned in special session. The regular grand jury of Somerset county is not due to meet until the third Tuesday in September.

FOGO'S REMOVAL ORDER UPHELD

Commission Sustains all Charges in Hurd Case.

Sustaining charges of drunkenness, inefficiency and failure to pay debts, as filed by Mayor W. L. Fogo, the Wellsville civil service commission ordered Harry F. Hurd, patrolman, removed from office, effective from June 26, in a decision handed down yesterday afternoon.

The decision followed a hearing conducted by the commission last Tuesday in which 11 witnesses were called by the prosecution. Hurd, tendering his resignation to the commission a short time before the hearing was opened, was not present and offered no defense.

Each of Mayor Fogo's charges was sustained in the following decision by the commission:

"In considering the testimony presented, we find—

"Sufficient evidence to sustain the charge of drunkenness, in the testimony of J. I. Durst, who testifies that on the 6th day of June, 1925, Officer Harry Hurd, while on duty, in pursuit of automobile theft suspect, entered his dwelling, staggered against his chair, upon which, he (Durst) was sitting a supper table. Said Hurd then fired three shots from his revolver at the fleeing person, shots fired from position near table. 'Hurd gave every indication of drunkenness and I smelled whisky on his breath.'

"Railroad Police Herline testified that on this same day said Hurd 'was driving police patrol at high speed on Eighteenth street; we were both in middle of street and we both swerved to our right, in so doing Hurd ran into telephone pole, smashing the patrol. I immediately went over to the scene and Hurd placed me under arrest Hurd certainly acted as though intoxicated.'

"Officer Newton testified that a call was sent into fire station this same day to come and get Hurd because he was drunk and would get in trouble.

"The commission finds that the several charges of drunkenness against Patrolman Hurd were fully sustained by the evidence, and constitute sufficient statutory cause for the order of removal made by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

"The charge of inefficiency and gross neglect of duty was justified by the introduction of the testimony of said Harry F. Hurd give in the case of W. L. Fogo versus John H. Fultz (said testimony submitted in form of stenographic report of said Fultz trial) which shows that said Hurd was not aware of gambling houses being operated on his beat, and saw no reason why he should investigate the parking of numerous automobiles along Main street all night, without apparent reason or cause.

"The charge of failure to pay his just and lawful debts, is sustained by the evidence of Mayor W. L. Fogo, who testified that numerous requests had been made to his office to have said Harry F. Hurd pay bills of all descriptions.

"We, the members of the civil service commission of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, do hereby sustain Mayor Wallace L. Fogo, in his order of removal of Harry F. Hurd, as patrolman, and said order is affirmed.

"We, therefore, order that said Harry F. Hurd be and is hereby removed from the office of patrolman, in the classified service of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, said order to be effective from the date of the order of removal by Mayor W. L. Fogo, to wit: June 26, 1926.

"We further order that the secretary cause copies of this decision be delivered to Harry F. Hurd and Mayor W. L. Fogo.

"CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
"Dwight McLean,
"Harry Hammond,
"W. C. Fogo.
"Attest: Grattan V. Dugan, secretary"

ASK NEW TRIAL IN LOAN SUIT

Felix Anania Claims New Evidence in Watkins Case.

"Newly discovered evidence" which was not introduced in the first trial and seven other reasons are cited by Attorney Ben L. Bennett in his application for a new trial in the civil action brought by Felix Anania, Bradshaw avenue, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, decision in which was returned in favor of the defendant in municipal court last Tuesday.

The suit was based upon a loan of $200 alleged to have been made by Anania to Mrs. Watkin, when her husband Albert Watkin, was fined by Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, for a liquor violation about three years ago. Mrs. Watkin denied having received money from Anania, claiming that the signature on the back of a chock introduced by the plaintiff was not her handwriting.

Anania, in his application, assets that Peter Mullen, now a resident of Florida, saw the money paid over to Mrs. Watkin when she cashed the check. This evidence, it is claimed, was not submitted when the case was heard before Judge Hanley this week.

The eight reasons set up by counsel for the plaintiff in the application for a new trial are:

"1. The court erred in admitting evidence over the objection of the plaintiff.

"2. That the verdict is not sustained by sufficient evidence and is contrary to the greater weight of the evidence.

"3. That the verdict is contrary to law.

"4. That the court erred in its charge to the jury.

"5. Said verdict was rendered for the defendant when it should have been rendered for the plaintiff.

ASK NEW TRIAL IN LOAN SUIT

Felix Anania Claims New Evidence in Watkins Case.

"Newly discovered evidence" which was not introduced in the first trial and seven other reasons are cited by Attorney Ben L. Bennett in his application for a new trial in the civil action brought by Felix Anania, Bradshaw avenue, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, decision in which was returned in favor of the defendant in municipal court last Tuesday.

The suit was based upon a loan of $200 alleged to have been made by Anania to Mrs. Watkin, when her husband Albert Watkin, was fined by Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, for a liquor violation about three years ago. Mrs. Watkin denied having received money from Anania, claiming that the signature on the back of a check introduced by the plaintiff was not her handwriting.

Anania, in his application, assets that Peter Mullen, now a resident of Florida, saw the money paid over to Mrs. Watkin when she cashed the check. This evidence, it is claimed, was not submitted when the case was heard before Judge Hanley this week.

The eight reasons set up by counsel for the plaintiff in the application for a new trial are:

"1. The court erred in admitting evidence over the objection of the plaintiff.

"2. That the verdict is not sustained by sufficient evidence and is contrary to the greater weight of the evidence.

"3. That the verdict is contrary to law.

"4. That the court erred in its charge to the jury.

"5. Said verdict was rendered for the defendant when it should have been rendered for the plaintiff.

"6. Newly discovered evidence, material to the issue, which the plaintiff, with reasonable diligence, could not have discovered and produced at the time of the trial.

Forest in New Hampshire has about 7,000 deer in a relatively small area, and there are deer in national forests in 26 states, besides the numbers outside federal areas. California has more than 200,000 and all of the western states have large supplies.

Grizzlies Near Extinction.

Grizzly bears are on the decrease, and are nearing extinction except in Alaska. Aside from about 400 in Montana there are very few in the states. The dangerous character of the grizzly to man and beast has caused him to be hunted out, and it is doubtful whether the species will be preserved except in captivity.

Caribou are not numerous, but never were found in numbers in the states, being a more northern species. A few small herds in Montana, Idaho and Washington seem to be holding their own. About 6,000 moose are recorded, an increase of almost a thousand in a year. They are carefully guarded by law.

Game laws are a matter of state enactment, and the Forest Service merely advises with state authorities about conditions in the forest reserve areas. Forestry officials believe the states could regulate their game stock to better advantage if their laws were more elastic. The foresters are often in position to forecast a bad winter for certain forms of game, by knowing that the numbers exceed probable feeding material. In such conditions an increase in fall hunting could well be allowed, but game laws are usually too rigid to admit such a thing.

The foresters are of the opinion that increased hunting due to automobiles has not done much harm to the big game of the country, as most of the new hunters are not expert and their kill is small. The foresters who are in the woods the year round are prone to make light of the game killing abilities of the "drug store hunters" but to exaggerate their man killing abilities. They insist also that domestic cattle on the ranges suffer greatly during the hunting season. To the huntsmen who declare that game is becoming extinct, the rangers reply that there is plenty of game if the hunters could hit it.

The Forest Service does not advocate any general loosening of game laws and protection, but the trend of Mr. Barnes' report is to indicate that game is not being wiped out and will not be so long as there remains the present amount of forest land. Alaska remains a great game country, the total of its big game life being roughly estimated by the foresters but with no pretense that they have more than a good guess at the life of the great northern woods.

Haskin's Letter

Forest in New Hampshire has about 7,000 deer in a relatively small area, and there are deer in national forests in 26 states, besides the numbers outside federal areas. California has more than 200,000 and all of the western states have large supplies.

Grizzlies Near Extinction.

Grizzly bears are on the decrease, and are nearing extinction except in Alaska. Aside from about 400 in Montana there are very few in the states. The dangerous character of the grizzly to man and beast has caused him to be hunted out, and it is doubtful whether the species will be preserved except in captivity.

Caribou are not numerous, but never were found in numbers in the states, being a more northern species. A few small herds in Montana, Idaho and Washington seem to be holding their own. About 6,000 moose are recorded, an increase of almost a thousand in a year. They are carefully guarded by law.

Game laws are a matter of state enactment, and the Forest Service merely advises with state authorities about conditions in the forest reserve areas. Forestry officials believe the states could regulate their game stock to better advantage if their laws were more elastic. The foresters are often in position to forecast a bad winter for certain forms of game, by knowing that the numbers exceed probable feeding material. In such conditions an increase in fall hunting could well be allowed, but game laws are usually too rigid to admit such a thing.

The foresters are of the opinion that increased hunting due to automobiles has not done much harm to the big game of the country, as most of the new hunters are not expert and their kill is small. The foresters who are in the woods the year round are prone to make light of the game killing abilities of the "drug store hunters" but to exaggerate their man killing abilities. They insist also that domestic cattle on the ranges suffer greatly durfng the hunting season. To the huntsmen who declare that game is becoming extinct, the rangers reply that there is plenty of game if the hunters could hit it.

The Forest Service does not advocate any general loosening of game laws and protection, but the trend of Mr. Barnes' report is to indicate that game is not being wiped out and will not be so long as there remains the present amount of forest land. Alaska remains a great game country, the total of its big game life being roughly estimated by the foresters but with no pretense that they have more than a good guess at the life of the great northern woods.

Turk-Nash Gets Early Start To Defeat Laughlin, 7 To 2

Five Hits and Three Errors In First Two Innings Beat Newell

Overcome Two-run Lead in Opening Frame and Swell Total in Next; Two Runners Count on McConnell's Long Circuit Smash.

BUNCHING five hits and taking advantage of three errors in the first two innings of their contest with Laughlin last evening at Patterson Field, Turk-Nash scored seven runs as against two and copped the clash with the first half winners. Inasmuch as all the run making was done in the firsts two innings, the contest finished with a 7-2 count.

Thirdbaseman Herbert of Laughlin who has been absent from the lineup for several days, had difficulty in adjusting himself to his old station. He dropped two easy assists and he had difficulty in finding the range at first base.

Eight men batted in both the first and second innings for Turk-Nash when three and four runs, respectively, were made. After that Suder permitted but two safe drives in four innings as he blanked the opposition regularly.

Laughlin began things with a dash and scored three runs on Crawford's single, Parsons' sacrifice and Finley's double. Then Pollock, pitching for the auto outfit, turned back the West Virginians for six innings.

In Danger In Fourth.

Only in the fourth was he in danger of being scored on. Then Herbert opened with a single to left. Babb flew to Eddie Bayley, who dropped the ball, but stepped on second in time to force out Herbert. W. Watson flew to E. Mundy. Aufderheide singled to right as did Hunselman. On the latter blow Mundy assisted to Schneidmiller who tabbed out Babb as he essayed to cross the plate.

Despite the fact that Umpire McKernan was on top of the play at the plate in position for close observation, Newell objected considerably to the decision.

McConnell made the big blow of the game in the second inning when, with two men on, he drove a liner to the fence in deep middle-left. He skipped from bag to bag and beat the throw to the plate. It was a fine hit and an even better exhibition of running the bases, McConnell showing no hesitation or inclination to stop at third and consequently being able to register a homer.

Schneidmiller and Earl Mundy had a couple of safe hits a piece, the latter clouting at a .667 clip for the day and the former .500.

Herbert Leads Hitters.

Herbert led his team in hitting with a single and double in three attempts. He also contributed a fine catch of a foul off J. Watson's bat in the third.

Crawford, singling to left in the first, reached second on Parson's sacrifice. R. Pollock to Talbott and third when Finley doubled to middle-right. A Bayley, barely touching the ball, threw wildly into the diamond, the ball passing third, enabling Crawford to finish and Finley to camp on the hot corner from where he scored as Herbert grounded to E. Bayley on first, the latter making the putout. Babb went out, J. Watson to Talbott.

E. Bayley was safe on Herbert's high throw to first and went to second. McConnell drove to Finley, who assisted to Herbert. In the run-about Herbert dropped the ball and the second sacker reached third safely and McConnell held up at second. Both runners scored on Schneidmiller's hard drive over second. He reached second on the throw to the plate and after D. Morgan walked, counted on Talbott's single to right. J. Watson then fanned.

E. Mundy opened the second with a single over short. E. Bayley, sacrificing, was safe on W. Watson's muff of Herbert's wide assist. McConnell drove a liner to the weeds in middle-left and circled the bases, the two on the paths counting before him. Finley threw low to first on A. Bayley's drive. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled, scoring A. Bayley. D. Morgan grounded to Babb. Talbott struck out.

MOTORS DEFEAT WELLSVILLE, 2-1

Come From Behind to Win in Final Frame.

IN a well played contest, one of the best of the City Industrial league season, Victory Motor, with Bill Mundy pitching against Patterson defeated Wellsville at Klondyke, 2 to 1, last evening.

With the count 1 to 0 against them Victory Motors put over the tying and winning run without a single retirement in their half of the sixth, the final period of the contest, with darkness was impending.

Mundy sent a safe drive past second in that interim. Buzzard drew a pass. Yocum singled over short, scoring the former major leaguer. C. Coleman singled through short enabling Buzzard to finish which ended the contest.

Not until the fifth did either side score. Then Wellsville sent a man around. Dustman opened with a single between first and second. He stole second and third successively from where he counted on Pollock's low throw to Yocum. Wagner and Patterson fanned. James was hit by a pitched ball. Roger fanned, but was safe on Mundy's wild throw to Pollock.

Mundy allowed but four hits and fanned eight men. He walked but one.

Patterson fanned one and passed four. He allowed six singles.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Because the clubhead rather drags in the first three-fourths of the back swing when the back swing is initiated by a body movement, the player will have the feeling that his hands are absolutely controlling things. This is as it should be. Also this dragging feeling of the clubhead promotes a keen sensitivity in the hands. The club having been taken to the top in this manner, it becomes perfectly natural for the player to lead off through his hips in the forward swing. He has then but to add the refinements which will readily suggest themselves, such as keeping the left shoulder up, the head still, eye on the ball and so on. One of the first things you will note when such a swing has been practiced until it can be depended upon is that the divots will be cut straight with the line instead of across it.

11 ENTERED IN RICHEST RACE

HOMEWOOD, Ill., July 31.—The world's richest race, the eighteenth renewal of the American derby, will be run this afternoon at the Washington park race track with eleven probable starters.

A purse of $100,000 has been put up to bring the race back to its former glory. Only a quarter of a century ago it was known as the most famous race track classic in America.

Track officials' expectations of a crowd of 50,000 were somewhat lowered when rain began falling early this morning.

Due to delaying the running of the derby from July 10 until today and the uncertainty of mutuel betting being allowed the list of entries for such an opulent event is almost pitiful. Only eleven three-year-olds have responded in the overnight entries.

Display, winner of the Preakness stakes and second to Crusader in the Coney Island derby is looked upon as choice favorite. Black Maria another eastern color bearer is next in popular esteem.

Some doubt is expressed as to wether or not Baggenbaggage, named with Boot to Boot as the Bradley entry, will go to the post. According to every report available Baggenbaggage is not in trim.

And it doesn't mean anything when you have.

ACMES DEFEAT DE MOLAYS, 10-3

The Acme baseball club annexed another scalp in a fast seven-inning clash last evening at Columbian park, defeating the DeMolays, 10 to 3.

Mackey pitched effectively for the Acmes throughout. Wilson, who essayed mound duties for the DeMolays, was pounded from the slab in the sixth.

Other score were: Culler, 168; Rymer, 159; John Springer, 154; W. Springer, 150; Spear, 138; Doc Jones, 132.

E. Culler had high score on single target, missing three out of 50.

Buccaneers' Pennant Task Is Simplified

Robins Muff Opportunity to Advance; Then Giants Follow Suit, and Now Chicago Cubs, Conceded Chance, Also Fall Upon Evil Days.

By Garry Schumacher.

NEW YORK, July 31.—As the National league flag race progresses the task of the front-running Pirates becomes more simplified. For, one by one, their pursuers are knocking themselves out of the race.

First it was the Robins who ingloriously muffed the opportunity to advance. Out of fourteen games with the Pirates and the Reds, they won but five, a performance that completely eliminated them from pennant consideration.

Then the Giants took a hand. A successful western tour put them into the pennant picture, and many close observers expressed the opinion that eventually they would be the team to contest Pittsburgh's right to another pennant. But three straight lickings at the Polo grounds, two of them from the Pirates, just about reads them out of the party.

Cubs Drop Back.

And now we have the Chicago Cubs. They were conceded a chance, too, as they entrained for their tour of the eastern seaboard, if only for their hustle and fighting qualities. But they too have fallen upon evil days—three straight at Boston and at Brooklyn have dropped them to the brink of the second division.

Failure to hit is the explanation for their sudden flop. They were beaten in two games at the Hub by the scores of 1 to 0 and 3 to 2, the second defeat being sustained after fourteen innings, and yesterday they succumbed to Burleigh Grimes by a 4 to 1 tally.

As these scores indicate the Chicago pitching was decidedly high class, but without batting support.

Turk-Nash Gets Early Start To Defeat Laughlin, 7 To 2

Five Hits and Three Errors In First Two Innings Beat Newell

Overcome Two-run Lead in Opening Frame and Swell Total in Next; Two Runners Count on McConnell's Long Circuit Smash.

BUNCHING five hits and taking advantage of three errors in the first two innings of their contest with Laughlin last evening at Patterson Field, Turk-Nash scored seven runs as against two and copped the clash with the first half winners. Inasmuch as all the run making was done in the firsts two innings, the contest finished with a 7-2 count.

Thirdbaseman Herbert of Laughlin who has been absent from the lineup for several days, had difficulty in adjusting himself to his old station. He dropped two easy assists and he had difficulty in finding the range at first base.

Eight men batted in both the first and second innings for Turk-Nash when three and four runs, respectively, were made. After that Suder permitted but two safe drives in four innings as he blanked the opposition regularly.

Laughlin began things with a dash and scored three runs on Crawford's single, Parsons' sacrifice and Finley's double. Then Pollock, pitching for the auto outfit, turned back the West Virginians for six innings.

In Danger In Fourth.

Only in the fourth was he in danger of being scored on. Then Herbert opened with a single to left. Babb flew to Eddie Bayley, who dropped the ball, but stepped on second in time to force out Herbert. W. Watson flew to E. Mundy. Aufderheide singled to right as did Hunselman. On the latter blow Mundy assisted to Schneidmiller who tabbed out Babb as he essayed to cross the plate.

Despite the fact that Umpire McKernan was on top of the play at the plate in position for close observation, Newell objected considerably to the decision.

McConnell made the big blow of the game in the second inning when, with two men on, he drove a liner to the fence in deep middle-left. He skipped from bag to bag and beat the throw to the plate. It was a fine hit and an even better exhibition of running the bases, McConnell showing no hesitation or inclination to stop at third and consequently being able to register a homer.

Schneidmiller and Earl Mundy had a couple of safe hits a piece, the latter clouting at a .667 clip for the day and the former .500.

Herbert Leads Hitters.

Herbert led his team in hitting with a single and double in three attempts. He also contributed a fine catch of a foul off J. Watson's bat in the third.

Talbott played a good game at first and, with a single to right, sent over the run that put his team in the lead in the first inning.

Crawford, singling to left in the first, reached second on Parson's sacrifice. R. Pollock to Talbott and third when Finley doubled to mid'e-right. A Bayley, barely touching the ball, threw wildly into the diamond, the ball passing third, enabling Crawford to finish and Finley to camp on the hot corner from where he scored as Herbert grounded to E. Bayley on first, the latter making the putout. Babb went out, J. Watson to Talbott.

E. Bayley was safe on Herbert's high throw to first and went to second. McConnell drove to Finley, who assisted to Herbert. In the run-about Herbert dropped the ball and the second sacker reached third safely and McConnell held up at second. Both runners scored on Schneidmiller's hard drive over second. He reached second on the throw to the plate and after D. Morgan walked, counted on Talbott's single to right. J. Watson then fanned.

E. Mundy opened the second with a single over short. E. Bayley, sacrificing, was safe on W. Watson's muff of Herbert's wide assist. McConnell drove a liner to the weeds in middle-left and circled the bases, the two on the paths counting before him. Finley threw low to first on A. Bayley's drive. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled, scoring A. Bayley. D. Morgan grounded to Babb. Talbott struck out.

Conkle, Chester pitcher, injured his arm in the second inning and was relieved by Hendrickson, who held Newell safely, while his mates overcame a two-run lead.

The reserves ran wild on the bases, swiping 14 sacks, Moore, with 5, and Campbell, with 3, leading. Campbell had a perfect day at bat, getting three hits in three trips to the plate. Greenspun starred for Newell, making several sensational stops. Their victory gives the Reserves six in a row.

Buccaneers' Pennant Task Is Simplified

Robins Muff Opportunity to Advance; Then Giants Follow Suit, and Now Chicago Cubs, Conceded Chance, Also Fall Upon Evil Days.

By Garry Schumacher.

NEW YORK, July 31.—As the National league flag race progresses the task of the front-running Pirates becomes more simplified. For, one by one, their pursuers are knocking themselves out of the race.

First it was the Robins who ingloriously muffed the opportunity to advance. Out of fourteen games with the Pirates and the Reds, they won but five, a performance that completely eliminated them from pennant consideration.

Then the Giants took a hand. A successful western tour put them into the pennant picture, and many close observers expressed the opinion that eventually they would be the team to contest Pittsburgh's right to another pennant. But three straight lickings at the Polo grounds, two of them from the Pirates, just about reads them out of the party.

Cubs Drop Back.

And now we have the Chicago Cubs. They were conceded a chance, too, as they entrained for their tour of the eastern seaboard, if only for their hustle and fighting qualities. But they too have fallen upon evil days—three straight at Boston and at Brooklyn have dropped them to the brink of the second division.

Failure to hit is the explanation for their sudden flop. They were beaten in two games at the Hub by the scores of 1 to 0 and 3 to 2, the second defeat being sustained after fourteen innings, and yesterday they succumbed to Burleigh Grimes by a 4 to 1 tally.

As these scores indicate the Chicago pitching was decidedly high class, but without batting support.

Golfers Find Lions On African Course; At 19th Hole; Maybe

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, July 31.—Golf has its perils on the courses at Boira, for a lion and a lioness have made their homes there. An armed hunt by golfers resulted in the death of the loin, but the lioness is still a hazard.

FIRE IS RAGING IN COAL MINE

Tipple Blaze Results in Loss Estimated at $50,000.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Fire which destroyed the tipple of the Corona Coal company mine at Hepzibah, near here, with damage estimated at $50,000, today had spread to the mine shafts as firemen, handicapped by lack of water, battled to save the mine from total loss.

Firemen worked throughout the night with the assistance of volunteers from neighboring mine camps to prevent spread of the flames, but were practically helpless as flames had cut all electric light and telephone wires, and no water was available.

Two miners, trapped in the shaft when the flames broke out, climbed through the smoke and fire to safety. They were both overcome by smoke as they staggered out of the danger zone, but were revived.

Fire Chief S. R. Hoffman, of Clarksburg, was called to Hepzebah when the fire broke out but had returned here today. He was of the opinion that little could be done to fight the flames in view of the lack of water and apparatus.

UNION SERVICE HERE TOMORROW

The last of a series of union meetings of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the latter church. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the former church, will be the speaker.

The meetings which began six weeks ago have been successful, according to opinions of pastors and members of the respective congregations. It is estimated that the total attendance has been 100 per cent greater than it had been in the usual meetings of the three combined churches.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPORTS MOUNT

West Virginia exported commodities valued at $9,570,561 during the first three months of the current year, an increase of $1,575,650 over its $7,994,911 shipments in the corresponding period of 1925, according to a statement made public today by the department of commerce. This increased export activity enabled the state to finish the first quarter in 25th position in the exporting race of all states, as compared with its position of 30th at the conclusion of the first quarter last year.

Foreign shipments of coal predominate among the other exports from West Virginia during the opening quarter of this year and were valued at $6,855,738. Exports of wood and manufactures of wood ranked second in importance with a value of $497,483; shipments of iron and steel plates sheets, etc., followed with a value of $401,557; exports of cotton manufactures ranked fourth with a value of $360,204, and foreign sales of wood pulp brought up the rear with a total of $259,092.

BROOKE COUNTY ARRESTS CLIMB

Records on the books of Sheriff Robert M. Lowe today revealed that a total of 990 arrests have been made in Brooke county since the present administration assumed office on January 1, 1925.

Effective August 1, the county treasurer's office will be located in the Henry Zilliken property on Main street, opposite the city-county building, in Wellsburg. All tax collections will be made at the new quarters in the future. The change of the location of the county office was deemed expedient because of crowded conditions said to exist in the county building where the sheriff's and treasurer's offices occupied teh same room.

Washington and the White Sox, who have been doing the Alphonso and Gaston act over fifth place, put on the show again. The Sox overcame a three run lead and won out in the ninth, 5 to 4, jumping back to the head of the second division.

The Browns succumbed to the cyclonic Yankees in the eleventh, 10 to 8, for the fourth time in succession. It was the Hugmen's ninth straight victory and Shocker's fifteenth triumph of the season.

Babe Ruth chipped in with his thirty-second homer, but he is nine homers or 22 games behind the record.

FIRE IS RAGING IN COAL MINE

Tipple Blaze Results in Loss Estimated at $50,000.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Fire which destroyed the tipple of the Corona Coal company mine at Hepzibah, near here, with damage estimated at $50,000, today had spread to the mine shafts as firemen, handicapped by lack of water, battled to save the mine from total loss.

Firemen worked throughout the night with the assistance of volunteers from neighboring mine camps to prevent spread of the flames, but were practically helpless as flames had cut all electric light and telephone wires, and no water was available.

Two miners, trapped in the shaft when the flames broke out, climbed through the smoke and fire to safety. They were both overcome by smoke as they staggered out of the danger zone, but were revived.

Fire Chief S. R. Hoffman, of Clarksburg, was called to Hepzebah when the fire broke out but had returned here today. He was of the opinion that little could be done to fight the flames in view of the lack of water and apparatus.

UNION SERVICE HERE TOMORROW

The last of a series of union meetings of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the latter church. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the former church, will be the speaker.

The meetings which began six weeks ago have been successful, according to opinions of pastors and members of the respective congregations. It is estimated that the total attendance has been 100 per cent greater than it had been in the usual meetings of the three combined churches.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPORTS MOUNT

West Virginia exported commodities valued at $9,570,561 during the first three months of the current year, an increase of $1,575,650 over its $7,994,911 shipments in the corresponding period of 1925, according to a statement made public today by the department of commerce. This increased export activity enabled the state to finish the first quarter in 25th position in the exporting race of all states, as compared with its position of 30th at the conclusion of the first quarter last year.

Foreign shipments of coal predominate among the other exports from West Virginia during the opening quarter of this year and were valued at $6,855,738. Exports of wood and manufactures of wood ranked second in importance with a value of $497,483; shipments of iron and steel plates sheets, etc., followed with a value of $401,557; exports of cotton manufactures ranked fourth with a value of $360,204, and foreign sales of wood pulp brought up the rear with a total of $259,092.

BROOKE COUNTY ARRESTS CLIMB

Records on the books of Sheriff Robert M. Lowe today revealed that a total of 990 arrests have been made in Brooke county since the present administration assumed office on January 1, 1925.

Effective August 1, the county treasurer's office will be located in the Henry Zilliken property on Main street, opposite the city-county building, in Wellsburg. All tax collections will be made at the new quarters in the future. The change of the location of the county office was deemed expedient because of crowded conditions said to exist in the county building where the sheriff's and treasurer's offices occupied teh same room.

Washington and the White Sox, who have been doing the Alphonso and Gaston act over fifth place, put on the show again. The Sox overcame a three run lead and won out in the ninth, 5 to 4, jumping back to the head of the second division.

The Browns succumbed to the cyclonic Yankees in the eleventh, 10 to 8, for the fourth time in succession. It was the Hugmen's ninth straight victory and Shocker's fifteenth triumph of the season.

Babe Ruth chipped in with his thirty-second homer, but he is nine homers or 22 games behind the record.

STATE CROPS HIT HARD BY STORMS

The loss of crops in the northern part of the state due to hail and storms is estimated at $300,000 by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau office, at Parkersburg in the report for the wek ending July 27.

The report follows:

"The temperature was unusually high until Saturday, the maximum readings ranging generally from about 90 degrees to slightly above 100 degrees. The temperature was about normal for the last three days.

"Destructive hail fell in sections of northern Preston county. The loss to crops, windows and roofings was approximately $300,000. Heavy hail also fell in sections of eastern Berkeley county.

"Corn made rapid growth, is generally in good condition, and is mostly tassled.

"Potatoes are nearly ready to dig. Early varieties are marketed. Fair to excellent condition, but some fields are blighting.

"Much hay and oats harvested during the week, yields being mostly short.

LAMBS IN STATE SHOW DECREASE

West Virginia's lamb crop this year is estimated to be over 14 percent smaller than it was in 1925, according to recent information obtained by Barnard Gibbs, of the West Virginia crop and livestock deporting service. The survey was made through the rural carriers of the post office department and shows that the decrease in number of lambs living on June 1, or sold before that date as compared to the same date last year, is due to a decrease in number saved, rather than a decrease in breeding stock.

The number of breeding ewes one year old and over, on farms of the state was estimated as being the same this year as last or 329,000 head, but the number of lambs saved per one hundred head of breeding ewes averaged only 98.9 this year as compared to 115.5 last year. This indicates that the total number of lambs saved this year is 325,000 head as compared to 380,000 head in 1925.

Ceramic tonight.

PUBLIC WANTS "HEART STUFF"

So Says Star in "Fascinating Youth" at Ceramic.

"What does the public want in motion pictures?"

Ralph Lewis, well known character actor, says he knows, and to prove it, cites his own career of more than 30 years on the stage and screen.

Lewis plays the role of "John Ward" in "Fascinating Youth," the picture Sam Wood directed with the Paramount Junior Stars in the leading roles, which comes to the Ceramic on Monday.

"The public wants 'heart stuff,'" says Lewis.

"My own experience, I think, proves that sentiment is the most powerful emotion in motion pictures. I've enacted every kind of stage role since I left Northwestern University in 1894 to join a traveling stock company. I've played all sorts of screen roles since entering pictures.

"But, I'll admit—strange as it may seem, coming from an actor—that I didn't make any great impression on the public with my characterizations. In the industry, to the casting directors, I was 'just another character actor.' Then several years ago, there was a change, which I didn't even realize at first.

"I began to get more calls for my services. Writers began to ask for interviews. It took me by surprise, and I sat down and tried to analyze what it was all about.

"My conclusion, which I think a sound one, was easily arrived at: It was because I had begun to do sentimental, human characterizations of the American home.

"I had done harder work, probably, in previous pictures, such as the carpet-bagger in 'The Birth of a Nation' and 'Pere Grandet' in Rex Ingram's 'The Conquering Power,' but these characters, for the most part, had been unsympathetic. It was only when I consciously tried to direct my appeal to the heart rather than to the intellect, that I made my greatest success."

EAST END

VISITING PASTORS TO FILL PULPITS

Pulpits of three local churches will be occupied tomorrow by visiting ministers.

STATE CROPS HIT HARD BY STORMS

The loss of crops in the northern part of the state due to hail and storms is estimated at $300,000 by the U. S. department of agriculture, weather bureau office, at Parkersburg in the report for the wek ending July 27.

The report follows:

"The temperature was unusually high until Saturday, the maximum readings ranging generally from about 90 degrees to slightly above 100 degrees. The temperature was about normal for the last three days.

"Destructive hail fell in sections of northern Preston county. The loss to crops, windows and roofings was approximately $300,000. Heavy hail also fell in sections of eastern Berkeley county.

"Corn made rapid growth, is generally in good condition, and is mostly tassled.

"Potatoes are nearly ready to dig. Early varieties are marketed. Fair to excellent condition, but some fields are blighting.

"Much hay and oats harvested during the week, yields being mostly short.

LAMBS IN STATE SHOW DECREASE

West Virginia's lamb crop this year is estimated to be over 14 percent smaller than it was in 1925, according to recent information obtained by Barnard Gibbs, of the West Virginia crop and livestock deporting service. The survey was made through the rural carriers of the post office department and shows that the decrease in number of lambs living on June 1, or sold before that date as compared to the same date last year, is due to a decrease in number saved, rather than a decrease in breeding stock.

The number of breeding ewes one year old and over, on farms of the state was estimated as being the same this year as last or 329,000 head, but the number of lambs saved per one hundred head of breeding ewes averaged only 98.9 this year as compared to 115.5 last year. This indicates that the total number of lambs saved this year is 325,000 head as compared to 380,000 head in 1925.

PUBLIC WANTS "HEART STUFF"

So Says Star in "Fascinating Youth" at Ceramic.

"What does the public want in motion pictures?"

Ralph Lewis, well known character actor, says he knows, and to prove it, cites his own career of more than 30 years on the stage and screen.

Lewis plays the role of "John Ward" in "Fascinating Youth," the picture Sam Wood directed with the Paramount Junior Stars in the leading roles, which comes to the Ceramic on Monday.

"The public wants 'heart stuff,'" says Lewis.

"My own experience, I think, proves that sentiment is the most powerful emotion in motion pictures. I've enacted every kind of stage role since I left Northwestern University in 1894 to join a traveling stock company. I've played all sorts of screen roles since entering pictures.

"But, I'll admit—strange as it may seem, coming from an actor—that I didn't make any great impression on the public with my characterizations. In the industry, to the casting directors, I was 'just another character actor.' Then several years ago, there was a change, which I didn't even realize at first.

"I began to get more calls for my services. Writers began to ask for interviews. It took me by surprise, and I sat down and tried to analyze what it was all about.

"My conclusion, which I think a sound one, was easily arrived at: it was because I had begun to do sentimental, human characterizations of the American home.

"I had done harder work, probably, in previous pictures, such as the carpet-bagger in 'The Birth of a Nation' and 'Pere Grandet' in Rex Ingram's 'The Conquering Power,' but these characters, for the most part, had been unsympathetic. It was only when I consciously tried to direct my appeal to the heart rather than to the intellect, that I made my greatest success."

Ceramic tonight.
